Kidnaped Roxbury Boy's Own Story

A REGULAR HERO
Andrew Griffin surrounded by admiring group of new found pals who have properly elected him their leader.

YOUTH WAS STARVED, BEATEN

The Boston American today begins the amazing life story of Andrew Griffin. It is told by the fourteen-year-old kidnaped Roxbury boy himself.

A prelude is the kidnaping of the boy from Rockland, Me., to which place his parents moved from East Milton. Andrew was taken aboard a boat at Rockland and disappeared. Frantic search by the mother, father and sisters, aided by their attorney, Daniel J. Daley, failed. The father, Andrew J. Griffin, who started the first taxicab business in Boston, died of heart failure during the night in Young's Hotel, two years after the search began.

Andrew, who in his fourteen years has seen more of a cruel world than many a gray-haired man, begins his story at the time he is seven years old, the first he remembers. It ends with Andrew walking into his mother's arms seven years later. A mother's prayers had been answered.

Here is Andrew's story:

By ANDREW GRIFFIN

I don't remember how I happened to be in Bangor, Me. Way back in my memory there is a faint recollection of a trip with a woman in a boat and I guess that's when I was kidnaped from Rockland. She took me to Bangor.

I was seven years old. My first real memory is that I was living in the home of a woman named Alice White, No. 14 Willow street, in Bangor.

I knew some way that Alice White was not my mother. I wondered where my real mother and father was. Alice White told me Was my mother. She said my name was Johnny White. Somehow I didn't believe her.

In the house there was a man Harold Smith. He used to beat me something terrible when I didn't do what Alice told me to do. Gee, if

HUB SHIP ALEAK; 24 PASSENGERS ABOARD

Key West, Fla., Oct. 25.—The steamer is at anchor off Cape Canaveral leaking slightly with the coast guard cutter Yamacraw standing by.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 25.—The Boston and Gloucester steamship Mascotte, Boston bound, with twenty-four passengers aboard, is in distress but under convoy off the east coast of Florida.

The Mascotte sprang a leak, according to reports from the United States Coast Guard Station at Cape Canaveral.

Radio messages today say the ship is taking badly but that no help is needed. She is under convoy of the coast guard cutter Yamacraw.

The coast guard cutters Yamacraw and Seako of Savannah, Ga., are rushing to the steamer's assistance.

The Mascotte, a combination freight and passenger steamer of

FORBES NOW ACCUSED IN $5,000,000 DRUG GRAFT

Washington, Oct. 25. (I.N.S.)—Two new Federal investigations into operations in the U. S. Veterans' Bureau were seen today as a sequel to the sensational charges of graft and bribery brought against Col. Charles R. Forbes, former director, before a Senate committee. These were:

1—The Treasury Department, through the Internal Revenue Bureau, launched an inquiry into the whereabouts of $5,000,000 worth of drugs and narcotics stored by the bureau at Perryville, Md., during Forbes' administration in huge quantities of these drugs are reported to have "disappeared."

HUNNEWELL CASE AGAIN BOBS UP

Mrs. Reese's Statement, Read at the Corcoran Trial, Also Mentions Mishawum Revel

Into the "Blackmail Ring" trial today crept with surprising suddenness the name of Daniel H. Coakley, disbarred Boston attorney.

Also was revived the famous dinner at Mishawum Manor, wherein several New York motion picture magnates were shaken down for upwards of $100,000.

Also were mentioned for the first time the following:

The late Hollis H. Hunnewell, wealthy Wellesley resident, alleged to have been shaken down for the ring for $[illegible],000.

Thomas Mascette, known as "Mosie" and "Sir Thomas," accused of swindling several prominent Boston women of [illegible] fortunes. He was mentioned in the trial of Nathan A. Tufts, Middlesex district attorney, broken in office.

"Mosie" was also associated with Max Rothschild, clairvoyant and fortune teller, who has figured several times in the blackmail ring's machinations a shaking down monied suckers.

MENTIONS "BROWNIE"

Coakley's name figured in this manner: Levenson told Mrs. Lillian Hardy Reese, the witness who has been on the stand for three days, that Coakley figured in the famous Hunnewell shakedown and that they got $40,000 out of the victim.

This testimony [illegible] consumed as much of a surprise in the crowded courtroom where "Big Bill" Corcoran, his brother Leo, Harry E. Levenson, lawyer, and other alleged members of the ring are on trial charged with conspiracy, extortion and other things.

It was not in the nature of testimony, but was read in open court by Special Prosecutor Arthur D. Hill, from Lillian Reese's statement to J. Weston Allen when he was Attorney-General.

Attorney Joseph P. Walsh, for "Big Bill," attempted to throttle mention of Coakley and the Hunnewell case, but did not succeed, although Hill admitted that mention of the Hunnewell case had nothing to do with the present trial.

Other new names brought into the case were those of Brownie Keene

57 KILLED, 256 HURT IN GERMAN CLASHES

Cologne, Oct. 25 (AP).—Clashes occurred today between armed civilians and Separatists in Crefeld, following the hoisting of the Republican flag over the Rathaus, where Burgomaster Johansen surrendered to the Separatists, according to reports reaching Cologne. The Separatists say they are 1,000 strong in Crefeld. Belgian officers, however, estimate their number at about 1,500.

Paris, Oct. 25.—A Hamburg despatch to Le Journal says that 46 persons were killed and 238 wounded in the fighting between Communists and police in the past two days. The former lost thirty-four, while the police casualties amounted to twelve.

Five German policemen and two accessionists were killed when a police attack on separatist headquarters at Aix-la-Chapelle was repulsed, said a dispatch from there today.

Four men were killed and seventeen men and women wounded in Cologne in the course of food rioting in the district inhabited by the workingmen. The police resorted to arms when women demonstrators disregarded an order to disband.

The Rhineland Republic was proclaimed today at the former quarters of the American forces in Andernach, ten miles northwest of Coblenz, as well as at Soden, Birst and

THIEF BEATS UP STUDENT; SEIZES $50 CASH AND FLEES

An agile burglar who swung a wicked fist opened a window at No 87 Gainsboro street today, leaped upon Joseph Michelson, a student, beat him up, took $50 from his trousers and fled without awakening two other students sleeping in the same apartment. Michelson was treated for a scalp wound at City Hospital.

BRIDE FOUND IT BENEATH HER DIGNITY TO BE PUPIL

Milford, Oct. 25.—Mildred Fuller, Milford High School girl, ran away last Saturday and married Donald W. Loy, Hopedale postoffice clerk. She came back to school Monday, but today she turned in her books and announced that it was beneath the dignity of a married woman to attend high school. They were married by the Rev. Maxwell Savage at Worcester.

COUPLE MARRIED IN AUTO AS PUBLIC PASSES UNAWARES

Winchendon, Oct. 25.—An al fresco wedding which united Dorothy M. Clow, Dedham school teacher, and Franklin L. Bushnell, mechanical engineer, was performed near here with passing autoists as an unsuspecting audience.

The Rev. Edwin P. Booth of Boston stopped their motor car just south of the State line and performed the ceremony because his authority to perform weddings does not extend into New Hampshire. The party was on its way to Keene, N. H.

PINCHOT'S DRY SQUAD RAIDS MANY PLACES; ARRESTS MADE

Allentown, Pa., Oct. 25 (Universal).—Allentown and practically all of Lehigh County were virtually made as arid as the Sahara, when members of Governor Pinchot's dry enforcement squad raided simultaneously thirteen establishments, where, according to data compiled by enforcement agents, the sale and manufacture of intoxicating beverages had gone on for some time. At all places visited by the dry officers quantities of whiskey, wines, gin and strong beer were confiscated.

The raid came like a bolt from the blue. For the first time in the history of dry enforcement in the Lehigh private homes were searched for liquor and arrests made. Armed with the necessary credentials, thirty agents and their officers were assigned to the thirteen places raided, and simultaneously they swooped down upon the unsuspecting law violators. Arrests were made at all places visited.

LEVIATHAN REPAIRED AT SEA; WILL REACH PORT SATURDAY

London, Oct. 25 (I.N.S.).—A radiogram from the American liner Leviathan today stated that the repairs had been made to the turbine and that the steamship is now proceeding towards port at full speed.

The liner ran into a terrific gale in mid-Atlantic and a slight accident occurred to the engines. It was repaired after a twelve-hour delay.

The liner will reach port Saturday and will depart the following day for New York.

BOMB KILLS INDIAN REBEL CHIEF AND 5 BRITISH POLICE

Lahore, British India, Oct. 25.—Six persons, including Dhanna Singh, the notorious leader of the Babar Akalis, Sikh Zealots, were killed today by the explosion of a bomb near Hoslarpur.

While Superintendent of Police [illegible]rton, with his assistant, Jenkyn, were arresting Dhanna Singh, a bomb which the latter was carrying, exploded, blowing Dhanna and five policemen to pieces and injuring Superintendent Horton, his assistant and another policeman.

THOUSANDS WILL MAKE GRAPE JUICE

Hartford, Ct., Oct. 25.—So many persons have applied to the Collector of Internal Revenue for certificates permitting them to make fruit juices that the supply of blanks is exhausted with at least a thousand applications unfiled.

More than six thousand certificates already have been issued.

WESTMORELAND OFF IRISH COAST, SAFE

London, Oct. 25.—The master of the British steamer Westmoreland, fears for whose safety were felt, has sent a radio message to Lloyds giving his vessel's position as latitude 49.42 north, longitude 15.39 west between 300 and 400 miles off the Irish Coast. This was taken to indicate that the steamer had met with no mishap.

WOMAN KILLED BY AUTO IN FRONT OF CITY HOSPITAL

An unidentified elderly woman was instantly killed when she was struck by an automobile while crossing Massachusetts avenue in front of the South department of the City Hospital. The driver of the car, James J. Monyban of No. 23 Adams street, Dorchester, carried the body into the hospital. The woman was about 65 years old. She had gray hair, blue eyes, was 5 feet, seven inches tall and weighed about 120 pounds. She wore a dark checkered skirt and a brown overcoat. Her shoes and stockings were black.

of hospital construction work to a favored clique of contractors in return for a "split of the profits."

TRACING FRAUD.

The Senate committee's special staff of investigators, headed by Major-General John F. O'Ryan, meanwhile, was probing the bureau's records for trace of fraud and graft throughout the government's $17,000,000 hospital construction program.

A witness has told of orgies and of Forbes and others going in swimming in street clothing.

Evidence of seeming fraud has been unearthed, it was said, in the leasing of sites and award of construction contracts in a number of instances.

Interest in the Senate inquiry today was centred on whether Forbes will accept an invitation of the committee to testify in his own defence. The committee is in recess until Monday.

Forbes is reported to be in New York city today. Prior to his departure he made the following statement:

"I intended to give you a complete statement of this whole case but I have learned there will be further attacks upon me and I can't speak at this time. I will wait until they are finished attacking me and then I'll tell my side of the story. What I do talk, they will get another 'sensation.'"

FORBES HIRES LAWYER.

From other sources, it was learned Forbes has employed an attorney to represent him at future hearings of Senate Committee.

Following numerous charges submitted to the late President Harding by civic and independent organizations that gross irregularities, graft, incompetence and extravagance existed in the management of the United States Veterans' Bureau, the then director of the bureau, Col. C. B. Forbes of Seattle, resigned in January of this year. Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines was appointed director in his place.

The charges continued and were made on the floor of Congress. The Veterans' Bureau, which has disbursed over $2,000,000,000 and has a yearly budget of more than $400,000,000, is a consolidation of all the Government agencies affording relief to veterans.

So concrete were the charges that millions had gone for graft that the Senate on March 3 voted for a special Senatorial committee to investigate them. Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania introduced the resolution and was named chairman of the committee. Major Gen. John F. Ryan was designated as counsel for the committee. He strongly urged the investigation.

Counterfeit $10 Bill

Worcester, Oct. 25.—Storekeepers and bankers have been warned by the police to be on guard against counterfeit $10 bills. A new counterfeit appeared in a local store.

GARY PREDICTS CONTINUED PROSPERITY

New York, Oct. 25 (C.N.S.)—Continuance of American industrial prosperity was the keynote of his speech as president at the opening of the American Iron and Steel Institute today, by Elbert H. Gary, chairman of directors of the United States Steel Corporation. He extended hearty congratulations upon the abolition of the twelve-hour day.

"If the European atmosphere and conditions dominated our affairs," said Mr. Gary, "our business men might be depressed and somewhat doubtful of the future; but, fortunately, they do not. We are, or at least we may be, independent of all other countries so far as business progress and prosperity are concerned.

"It is doubtful if our government can at present be of much assistance in attempts to restore the equilibrium of Europe. Voluntary advice or sympathy just now would not be acceptable. Practically, we can be of benefit only by example.

"The iron and steel business of this country has grown by leaps and bounds until it has become one of the greatest of all the large industries. We have a productive annual capacity of about 60,000,000 tons of steel. We employ a maximum of about 600,000 men, who with their families aggregate a population of two and a half million people. We transact a business of two billion dollars or more annually.

Each one of us must share in and must render an account of this responsibility.

"If the business men will do their part and co-operate with the President and his assistants in conducting their affairs in conformity with the high ideals which we believe actuate the President, there is no reason to fear there will be a serious financial or commercial disturbance or depression during the next few months."

MEXICAN FINANCE PROBE ORDERED

Mexico City, Oct. 25.—After a stormy debate the lower house of the Mexican Congress voted to probe Secretary of Finance Fani's charges of financial mismanagement against Adolfo De La Huerta, his predecessor, and inquiries about the condition of the National Finances. It was announced Senor De La Huerta was preparing a sensational revelation as affecting the coming elections.

The Chagres River is still rising as the heavy rains continue.

B. U. CELEBRATES HALF-CENTURY

The golden jubilee of Boston University was celebrated today.

Representatives of 150 colleges and universities arrived here to take part in the program.

In honor of these delegates and other guests, President Lemuel H. Murlin will entertain tonight at a reception in Hotel Copley-Plaza.

"In the heart of the city—in the service of the city," the Boston University slogan was borne out at the observance with the participation of nearly eleven thousand students, three-fourths of them Bostonians.

In ten years Boston University has increased enrolment 565 per cent.

The present large institution owes its birth to three Boston merchants, and has developed, as Oxford, Cambridge, Harvard and Yale, from a theological school. Isaac Rich, Jacob Sleeper and Lee Claflin secured a charter for "Boston University" in 1869. The theological school was the first department.

The university now has theology, law, arts, medical and business departments.

Railroad Heads Pin Hopes of Safety On Coolidge

New York, Oct. 25.—The railroads are anxiously awaiting definite intimations of what stand President Coolidge will take, if the rumors of adverse legislation concerning the roads should come true, William G. Besler, president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, said today.

Most railroad heads, he intimated, were pinning their hopes on the President in the belief he will oppose Congress on drastic measures affecting the roads.

Gelsenheim, small towns in the districts of Wiesbaden, Bonn and Rydesheim.

The separatist movement now is opposed by a project for an independent republic engineered by Burgomaster Adenauer of Cologne and fostered by the Reich. It is said this is the real reason the visit of Chancellor Stresemann to Hagen.

The former German Crown Prince has requested Holland's official permission to leave the country, according to a Hague dispatch to L'Information. He has asked German officials to issue him a passport, declaring he has no monarchist aims and would not give any aid to the Royalist party.

Separatists Strongly Entrenched in Duren

Duren, Oct. 24 (AP).—The Separatists in Duren say they have complete control of this area of the North Rhineland. More than 600 of their men, they assert, are stationed in the Rathaus and other public buildings administered by army men.

Only officers are permitted to have arms, the explanation being they are responsible for the public safety. The police have been disarmed and Separatists with green, white and red armbands went about Duren today unmolested.

Burgomaster Averhues refused to surrender and is now a prisoner of the Separatists.

The Postal, Telegraph, Telephone and other public services continued in operation today. Headquarters have been established in the residence of Theodore Klevinghaus, who with Joseph Matthes is in Cobienz in the interests of the republic.

Hugo Hector, in charge of the operations here, made this statement:

"We want an independent Rhineland absolutely free of the fetters of Berlin. We are willing to share the burden of reparation and propose the League of Nations shall determine what we should pay. We stand for a free Rhineland as a buffer state in the interests of European peace."

SCORES WOOD IN MORO 'UPRISING'

By JOHN T. LAMBERT.

Washington, Oct. 25 (I.N.S.).—The Moro uprising is a fake straw-man, built up to make a military hero of General Leonard Wood and to embarrass the plea of the Filipinos for liberty, according to charges made here today by the Philippines press bureau.

In support of that claim the bureau made public the following cablegram from the Philippines Commission for Independence:

"Because of insistent reports that trouble among the Moros in the islands of Minando and Sulu are being engineered by elements antagonistic to Philippine independence, the Philippines House of Representatives has passed a resolution appointing a legislative committee to investigate conditions in Moroland.

"Governor General Wood has gone south 'to attend personally to the matter.'

"The expectation is that he will come back and attempt to convince the uninformed that the Moros are discontented with the rule of the Christian Filipinos in order to justify his actions here."

The bureau said today that of the 11,000,000 people in the Philippines all but 600,000 are Christians. The Moros are Mohammedans. Of the 500,000 Moros, 120 are reported to be uprising. General Wood is on his way to quell them. A force of 140 constabulary men preceded him.

THREE DAYS ORDEAL FOR MRS. REESE

Pretty Lure in the Blackmail Cases Appears to Be "Goat" at Trial

By AJAX JOE

Ted' and Lill' went up to Hill
And spilled the beans on Blackmail;
Ted' backed down, refused to clone,
Now Lill' is getting ructions.
—Blackmail Jangle.

Poor Lilly.

Three days on the witness stand with a file of lawyers fighting to get at her.

Like the "Wildcats" Lilly—she's a "goat."

Lilly the Lure! She shook down suckers with the ring. Now snapping, barking, tenacious lawyers one after another attempt to shake down Lill. They shake and shake and shake endeavoring to discredit the testimony she has given. She set spider traps for human flies to enter. The attorneys set legal traps for her to stumble into.

Poor Lill'.

She's Mrs. Lillian Hardy Reese and she has been on the witness stand since shortly after the blackmail trial with its row of defendants, charged with a dozen nefarious acts, opened.

There's "Big Bill" Corcoran, his brother, Leo, Lawyer Levenson, the swarthy faced, slight little man with big glasses, who got $100,000 shaking down suckers, but wanted a million—that is according to Lilly. She testified so.

GOLD DUST TWINS

Then there's Theresa or "Teddy" Duggan, the ring's go-getter and "Lill's" pal—no two ladies ever sprung a trap neater than "Lill" and "Teddy."

They were the gold dust twins and if you don't believe that read their "confessions."

Well, "Ted" confessed—told everything only to take a walk out powder and turn her once-pretty back on the prosecution, so the State says. Now she sits in the row with "Big Bill" and the boys.

"Mike" Lyons too, "Mike" the boy who got so het up when they trapped Max Korn, wealthy Peabody leather merchant, he flashed a badge and said he was from "Police Headquarters," according to "Lill,' and that knocked Levenson right out of a lot of smackers toward his chosen million.

Max you see got wise and refused to be shaken down.

He's one of the few who was entertained by "Ted" and "Lill" and never had to shell. Cost Max nothing more than a little Korn whiskey. So much for Mike.

JAZZY TESTIMONY

The rest are Lee Corcoran, Frank Duggan, Ted's ex-husband; J. Warren Kane, bald as a china egg;

$1,000,000 POLICIES FOR 120 AMERICANS

Mary Pickford

June Mathis

New York, Oct. 24—Life insurance policies of $1,000,000 or more are carried by at least 120 Americans, the Insurance Press announces. Four claims of more than $1,000,000 each were paid in 1922. Among the large policies written or increased recently are:

Adolph Zukor, $5,000,000; Douglas Fairbanks, $1,000,000; Mary Pickford, $1,000,000; J. C. Penney, White Plains, N. Y., $3,000,000; Erle Von Strohein, motion picture director, $1,000,000; June Mathis, scenario writer, $1,000,000; William Fox, increased to $2,610,000; Floyd R. Carlisle, president St. Regis Paper Company, $3,000,000.

The name of John Wanamaker, who took out the first "million dollar policy," heads the list of claims paid in 1922 with $3,000,000. Other large claims include Henry P. Davison, $2,000,000; Clarence J. Curby, Missouri, $1,700,000; Horace E. Hooper, New York, $1,600,000; Edward A. Clark, Massachusetts, $800,750.

SAYS WIFE MADE 50 THREATS ON HIS LIFE

Frank L. Struthers, the Lynn pawnbroker, whom his wife said preferred his pet dog to herself, testified in Essex Probate Court that his pretty wife, Rose, threatened on fifty different occasions to kill him.

Mrs. Struthers is suing for separate maintenance. She alleged that Struthers was stingy, and that she had to accept dinner invitations from other men to get enough to eat. She also implicated her mother-in-law.

F. L. Struthers

Rose Struthers

Struthers is fifty-two years old. He charged in court that his wife demanded money "every other day, at least," and that when he refused her demands she threatened to run to an open window and scream.

CHURCH MORTGAGE, 50 YEARS OLD, BURNED

Forty years service in the Methodist churches of Greater Boston is the record of the Rev. E. P. Herrick pastor of the Roslindale Methodist church who has just burned the mortgage upon that church at the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of that church.

Rev. E. P. Herrick

Pastor Herrick is a great advocate of a mortgage burning once a year. He says that it is a tonic to make one contented with the details of the ministry. Life which today are more exacting than ever before.

The art of being pleasant and keeping up your courage are the best ways to face any church disturbance.

ABANDON SEARCH FOR MISSING BABY

Waldron, Ark., Oct. 24.—The search for Pearl Turner, three-year old daughter of a mountaineer, whose disappearance from her home a week ago has baffled a posse of 500 men for five days, virtually has been abandoned. Leaders of the band of faithful men which has kept ceaseless vigil in the mountains since last Saturday expressed belief that the child would never be found.

29 DROPPED IN 'WAR' ON DR. STRATON

Calvary Baptist Church Punishes Members Seeking to Oust Pastor

New York, Oct. 25.—Twenty-nine members of the Calvary Baptist Church were suspended, charged with conducting a "guerrilla warfare" on the pastor, the Rev. John Roach Straton, and with violating their vows to support the church.

Eleven other members voluntarily withdrew as a result of charges by Dr. Straton that while he was in Europe last Summer a "coterie of his 11e members had tried to oust him.

Rev. John R. Straton

"It may no longer be said of Calvary Church that the tail is wagging the dog," Dr. Straton said.

He declared the church had become filled with social climbers who disliked his method of welcoming all who desired to join, and condemned the "pagan and unchristian ideas" of those who desire "showy dress and unspiritual services in the sanctuary, and pink teas in the Lord's house even on the Sabbath."

DEMOCRATS MUST BE WET TO GET CASH

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—The Democratic City Committee of Philadelphia will receive the income of a $1,000 trust fund for a period of ten years if the party organization, Federal, State or City, does not indorse Prohibition or the Volstead Act, according to the will of Henry C. Laughlin probated here. At the end of ten years the principal is to go to a nephew. Laughlin left an estate of nearly $400,000, much of it to charity.

WOMAN GETS $5,000 FOR STOLEN KISS

New York, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Alice Mercer, a chiropractor's wife, was awarded a $5,000 verdict against Louis Goodman, whom she accused of high-handed arbitrary osculation in the corridor of the apartment where the Mercer and Goodman families live.

Mrs. Mercer asked $50,000. Goodman testified she wasn't entitled to the $5,000 because she didn't even scream.

GUIMARES' BROTHER VANISHES

Wanted in Connection With Gang's $150,000 Swindle Scheme

New York, Oct. 25.—Henry Guimares, brother of Albert E. Guimares, who was arrested on the charge of being the "brains" of a gang of swindlers who have muleted unsuspecting investors of more than $150,000, has disappeared.

Federal authorities are searching for him, Assistant United States Attorney A. I. Menin said today.

A report that Henry intended to surrender like his brother, Dorothy King's sweetheart, proved untrue when he failed to appear at Menin's office here.

Albert Guimares is still a prisoner unable to get $5,000 bail.

Henry W. Fields and William B. Kaas, associates of Guimares, arrested Tuesday, were released on $2,500 bail each.

Warrants for the arrest of Richard Mitchell, Sidney Bennett and Frank B. Sheldon, all accused of assisting Guimares in his schemes, have been issued.

WORCESTER MOTHER, SON, IN AUTO CRASH

Springfield, Oct. 25.—Two women and two men were injured today when their auto crashed into a smaller car on a bad curve opposite Auto Inn near here. They are Mrs. Mary Flynn of No. 64 Houghton street, Worcester, her son Cornelius Flynn, Jr., and unidentified woman and Nicholas Vanto of No. 22 Overland street, Springfield. Cornelius Flynn, Sr., who was driving, was slightly injured, as was Frank Rose, occupant of the second car with Vanto.

AUTOMOBILE GOES 27 MILES ON AIR

with Stransky's self-regulating device. A simple self-regulating device that notses the proper amount of air with gasoline at the proper time has been invented by J. A. Stransky. An automobile equipped with this wonderful device went 27 miles on a gallon of gasoline that was formerly making only 10. It can be installed by anyone in five minutes. Lloyd Rates Ford a 16 to 1 Shot for Presidency

London, Oct. 25.—Henry Ford, according to Lloyd's, is 4 16 to 1 candidate for the Presidency of the United States.

For the first time in the annals of Britain's foremost speculative institution, Lloyd's accepted the sporting proposition of an American gambler, who wishes to wager by cable from New York 2,000 pounds ($12,000) against 40,000 pounds ($200,000) that Mr. Ford would be elected President of the United States.

APOLOGIZES FOR ERROR AND DROPS DEAD

John A. Grimmons, an electrical engineer in the employ of the Malden Gas & Electrical Co., Broadway, Everett, made an error in demonstrating a high-voltage switch, which he believed to be "dead," to a group of visitors.

A huge spark jumped from the switch to his hand. Turning to the visitors Grimmons apologized.

"Pardon me, gentlemen, my error," he said calmly, and fell dead in the arms of one of them.

J. A. Grimmons

Grimmons was conducting thirty members of the New England Electrical Operators' Association through the sub-power station in Everett.

Grimmons was twenty-four years old. He made his home with his mother, Mrs. Kate M. A. Grimmons, widow of the former Mayor Charles A. Grimmons of Somerville, and a brother, Charles C. Grimmons, at No. 72 Thurston street, that city.

LOVE TRIUMPHS OVER IMMIGRATION LAWS

Lawrence, Oct. 25.—Although immigration laws three times held up the entry of Miss Vartan Kachadorian of Armenia into this country, love found a way. The young woman was barred because of illiteracy and an eye ailment.

Her intended came here in 1913 and they planned to wed in 1921. Barred from entry she went to France and studied English. She has been in America but a few days and now is the happy bride of Hagop Vartanian of Humphrire street, to whom she was married at the Armenian Congregational Church.

FIVE MILLIONS EXPENDED TO AID IRELAND

Five million dollars were spent for the relief of Ireland during the year ending October 17, 1922, according to a report by John J. Pulleyn, treasurer of the American Committee for Relief in Ireland.

The money was collected during 1921, the report stated, and was expended during 1922.

The executive committee made a complete report of the activities of the American Committee and of the Irish White Cross. The personal expenses of the national executive committee were not charged to the Relief Fund. The promise that all these expenses would not be deducted from the contributions is said by Treasurer Pulleyn to have been faithfully carried out.

The contributions and donations to the fund, says the report, amounted to $5,069,194.38. This added to by receipts from other sources, making the total receipts $5,233,496.75.

The quota determined upon at the opening of the funds campaign was $10,240,000. Of this the amount collected was 49.50 per cent. or $5,069,194.39. New York City made the best showing in point of amount raised, it being $982,351.09. New Hampshire raised more than twice its quota, its total being $74,166.88. Rhode Island, too, surpassed its quota, raising three times its quota, giving $157,941.53. Massachusetts raised but 48.83 per cent. of its quota, its contribution amounting to $734,058.66.

Man, 75, Walks to Pittsburgh From Boston

Pittsburg, Oct. 25.—A desire to see the home of his birth once more before he died led Frank M. McGovern, aged seventy-five years, to walk from Boston to this city, he told Magistrate B. L. Succop in South Side police court when he was arraigned on a charge of vagrancy, following his application to the West End police last night for lodging.

McGovern told the magistrate that his hike took three months. He was penniless upon his arrival. Magistrate Succop granted the man's request that he be released.

MISSING CHELSEA MAN IS SOUGHT

Jorgen Biggo Jensen, thirty-eight years old, has been missing from his home at No. 19 Tremont street, Chelsea, for four weeks.

Mrs. Julia Jensen, his wife, today appealed to him, if he is living, to return to her.

The morning of the day he disappeared Jensen told his wife he would be home that afternoon. Mrs. Jensen has visited all hospitals in Greater Boston and the morgues. Her husband is five feet, 4 inches, weighs 140 pounds, has dark brown hair, and blue eyes.

MOTHER OF BOY KIDNAPED ASKS FOR DIVORCE

Baby William J. Marshall, Jr., kidnaped by his father six weeks ago and found in an Erie, Pa., boarding house, is at home with his mother, Mrs. Helena Trolsaas Marshall, at No. 12 Mountain avenue, Somerville.

"He was so dirty when I found him I actually had to wash his face before I could recognize him," Mrs. Marshall said. In the next breath she said the kidnaping was the straw that broke the camel's back and that she had instructed her attorneys to institute divorce proceedings against William J. Marshall, Sr., immediately.

Marshall will be extradicted from Pennsylvania within a week, his wife said, and will have to answer in this State to charges of abduction, kidnaping, non-support, contempt of court and larceny.

Shoots Horses He Loved to Prevent Their Being Sold

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 25.—"I killed them because I loved them," John Shute, 35, declared after tying his team of horses to a tree and shooting them dead. "I'm not crazy," he said. "I just couldn't stand to see the team sold and go into other hands to be abused."

Shute's brother attached the team to satisfy a judgment for a board bill, and the horses were to be sold at public auction. Shute was arrested for destruction of property.

4TH VICTIM IN POISONING MYSTERY

The mysterious poison which sent three members of one family to the City Hospital following a "cake-eating" party at their home has claimed another victim.

She is Mrs. Frederick Merchant of Harrison avenue, Roxbury, who is under the care of a physician at her house.

As a result of the addition of the latest name to the list of victims, the police have asked the Board of Health to investigate.

All of the victims collapsed after they had eaten cake at the home of Mrs. Sarah Gillis of No. 6 Circuit street, Roxbury. The first to be overcome by the poison was six-year-old Delana Hinckley, granddaughter of Mrs. Gillis. The latter and Miss Annie Hinckley, the child's mother, soon followed.

Mrs. Merchant, who was a member of the party, called a physician and the latter ordered the two women and the little girl to be removed to the City Hospital. Mrs. Merchant collapsed after she arrived at her home.

The cake which the four had eaten was bought in a Circuit street store. It was of the fruit variety and was covered with white frosting.

NORTH END WOMAN RECLUSE LEAVES ESTATE OF $40,000

Through filing of documents in connection with the death of Mrs. Sarah Bradley in her home, No. 29 Endicott street, North End, on October 11, it was learned that the woman who had lived alone in her apartment for thirty years left more than $40,000 in money and bonds.

Mrs. Bradley, who was about seventy, was found dead in her home October 17. Medical Examiner William J. Brickley searched the apartment, and discovered a bag, which contained $18,000 in bills, and bank books on several Boston banks, showing deposits of $21,000. There were government bonds to the value of $8,000. Attorney Peter F. Porter, of No. 30 Pemberton square, was appointed temporary administrator of the estate.

Mrs. Bradley had been separated from her husband for many years, and her only child, a son, Patrick, a former member of the old Common Council, died in 1918.

DICKIE'S CUP OF WOE FILLED; MEANEST MAN STOLE HIS DOG

Little Dickie Leonard has run along and took advantage of the upon the first great tragedy of his puppy's friendship. He carried him childhood. off.

A few months ago an Airedale puppy came to be Dickie's playmate at his home, No. 23 Russell street, Charlestown. Yesterday one of the meanest men in the world came to help her find the dog. Today Dickie is crying for his pet and his mother, Mrs. Richard Leonard, is afraid grief will make the little fellow ill. She wants someone to help her find the dog.

DUKE OF MANCHESTER PAYS BILLS; GETTING RICH, HE SAYS

New York, Oct. 25.—The Duke of Manchester, reported in debt and compelled to remain here until he settles a large hotel bill in Montreal, denies all such reports in an interview at the Hotel Netherlands. He will leave for Canada on business in a day or two, then sail for England. He said:

"The proof that all these rumors are lies is in the fact that I not only had enough money to pay my hotel bills, but actually paid an extra $500 charged to my account through some faulty bookkeeping on the part of the hotel management.

"I am making quite a bit of money now in mining in northern Canada, as I have struck a very fertile piece of land."

WHITE GIRLS SEIZED IN DANCE HALL RAID

New York, Oct. 25.—Sixteen white girls, ranging in age from eighteen to twenty years, and twenty-eight men, all Chinese, Japanese, Senegalese or Filipinos were arrested today when police raided a dance hall on Riverside Drive.

Taken to the police station in three patrol wagons, the men were booked for disorderly conduct, while the girls were held as incorrigibles. The place was raided last May, but at that time all the girls were discharged as dancing teachers and the men as dance pupils. The upper floors of the building are used as sleeping quarters by the men.

MUSSOLINI NEAR AS GRENADES EXPLODE

Rome, Oct. 25.—According to a Turin dispatch, six grenades exploded at a military horse show being held in Turin in the presence of Premier Mussolini. One lieutenant was seriously wounded, while a sergeant and four privates were slightly hurt.

It is understood the explosion of the grenades was part of the regular performance, but that they blew up prematurely.

WOMAN MANIAC PICKS LOCK; FLEES ASYLUM

Worcester, Oct. 25.—Although attendants at the State Hospital had been closely watching Mrs. Mildred Demoe, twenty-four years old, of Boston, she picked two locks, one her cell and another on a door leading to a rear piazza, and escaped. Hospital authorities say that Mrs. Demoe had previously made seven additional escapes from other institutions.

2,700,800 USED AUTOS SOLD DURING LAST NINE MONTHS

New York, Oct. 25.—Used car sales in United States in the first nine months of 1923 were 2,700,800, according to L. M. Shaw of National Automobile Dealers' Association.

On October 1 dealers had a stock of 399,800 used automobiles against 383,000 on July 1, 452,200 April 1 and 430,000 January 1. The average October 1 was 9.9 cars a dealer.

"Used car losses," said Mr. Shaw, "were reduced 73½ per cent. in third quarter as compared with second quarter, total loss for the period being $5,634,000.

"In October, 1921, dealers were faced with conditions that were a menace to stability of the dealer organizations. Our efforts begun at that time have steadily worked toward putting into hands of dealers information as a guide in handling used automobiles. We have linked to this a campaign of education to buying public."

SNOW BLANKETS MANY PLACES IN WEST

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Snow overspreads the States on the Eastern slope and in the foothill region of the Rocky Mountains; rain, snow and colder weather are reported from various sections of the Northwest, and lowered temperatures are forecast to penetrate to the lower Ohio valley and Tennessee by tomorrow.

A six-inch blanket of snow closed for the Winter the low mountain passes in Colorado which remained open before the storm, and snow drifts in Southern and Central Wyoming and in parts of Colorado blocked automobile traffic.

The heaviest fall of snow is reported from Fox Park, Wyoming, where two feet covers the ground, and drifts of from four to six feet are common. The snow line gradually diminishes eastward, with North and South Dakota reporting slight falls, and Western Minnesota flurries.

Points on the Northern Great Lakes have issued storm warnings, and snow is expected to follow the heavy winds which drove shipping to cover. The region of the gale is expected to be confided to the Northern Lake area, however.

In the south and southwest tops in the mercury caused considerable shivering. Texas and New Mexico were promised rain and snow for today.

Miami, Fla., haven of Northern residents seeking refuge from icy blasts, yesterday reported the lowest temperature in 25 years. Thermometers registered 52 degrees.

Snow and general Winter conditions in the past three days have greatly interrupted the work of the air mail pilots in the West.

PHONE INSPECTOR KILLS HIMSELF

Willis B. Mills, fifty-six years old, a lodger at No. 136 Huntington avenue, Back Bay, was found dead in a chair in his room, a bullet wound in his temple. In his hand he held a 38-caliber revolver. He is believed to have killed himself in a fit of despondency induced by ill health. Mills has been employed by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company as inspector in the Haymarket Exchange. Relatives in Albany, N. Y., have been notified, and will claim the body.

Combing Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff
Use Liquid Arvon

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and it never fails to do the work.

How You Can Make Hairs Quickly Disappear
USE DELATONE

Helps to Beauty

Even a stubborn growth of hair will quickly vanish from the face, neck or arms after a single treatment with delatone. To remove hair from arms, neck or face make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left free from hair or blemish. To avoid disappointment, be quite certain you get real delatone and mix fresh as wanted.

D PUPILS SAVED BY NUNS AT FIRE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 25 (Universal).—Fire destroyed historic old Mt. Troy Academy here.

Three hundred young women and children in the great structure escaped without injury or panic, due the heroism of the Ursuline nuns, so coolly, amid the roar of the flames, marshalled their charges in regular fire drill formation and marched them out of the doomed building.

Suns at the academy said the building, with its contents, was valued at $750,000.

HONEYMOON VOTERS LOSE BALLOT RIGHTS

New York, Oct. 25.—Honeymooning is neither a business nor an occupation according to a ruling made by the Board of Elections, and consequently honeymooners are not entitled to cast absentee ballots.

Under the law, only those away on "business duties or occupation within the United States" are entitled to cast absentee ballots, and in the unanimous opinion of the board, headed by John R. Voorhis, honeymooners are away for social reasons. The board granted to 160 voters the right to cast absentee ballots, and rejected 28. Last year 37 applications for absentee voting were received.

MISHAWUM MANOR REVEL CROPS UP AGAIN

dy, who conducted Mishawum Manor; Mosie Zoll, Jimmie Munroe, "who had a nice blue car"; Louis Cohen, a man named Powers who lived in Brookline, Paul Kohler of Charlestown Navy Yard and Ethel Stanton, a former telephone operator at the Quincy House, according to Mrs. Reese's statement, was sent to her home in Rochester, N. Y., by Levenson, who she claimed threatened to send the Stanton girl to jail if she did not leave town.

When reference was made in the statement to the Hunnewell case, Attorney Joseph Walsh counsel for William J. Corcoran, arose and said:

"Do you think that reference to the Hunnewell case should go in? It says, 'They got $40,000 out of that case.' Now there is no contention that any of these defendants were connected with that case and there is no charge in the indictment that they were."

"That is true," said Prosecutor Hill. "The references to the Hunnewell case in this statement has nothing to do with these cases on trial."

Arthur D. Hill, Special Prosecutor

Thereon Duggan, The "Ring's" Ace

"GOT $40,000"

In her statement of November 5, 1921, Mrs. Reese was asked this question:

"Did you ever hear Dan Coakley's name mentioned by Levenson?"

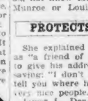
She replied in the statement, "Yes, I heard it mentioned by Levenson in connection with the Hunnewell case."

Q—Where did you hear Levenson mention Coakley's name? A—I think in Levenson's office.

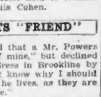
Q—How much did they get out of that case? A—I heard that they got $40,000.

She then was asked whether she had gone to Max Rotschild's to have her fortune told. She replied: "No, I didn't believe in them."

She then described Rothschild, otherwise known as Omar Kaldah, one of the missing defendants, as a "very stunning looking man. Tall and good looking, rather slight and having gray hair." She said he wore tortoise shell glasses.



Michael J. Lyons, Defendant



Atty Jos. P. Walsh counsel "Big Bill"

MET MOSETTE

She also said that she knew Thomas Mosette and that he was in the office with Rothschild. They used to call him "Moxie." She said she met him at Levenson's office in June, about a month before prohibition went into effect.

Q—Did you have any talk in Levenson's office in 1919 about being afraid? A.—No, at that time I didn't have anything to be afraid of.

Q—Did you ever hear of Mosette under the name of Jameson? A.—I may have, he had so many names.

Q—Did you ever know Brownie Kennedy? A.—Only to say, 'how do you do' to her.

Q—Do you know that man (showing Mrs. Reese a picture of former District Attorney Tufts of Middlesex county)? A.—I saw him with Peggy Purdy.

Q—Who is Peggy Purdy? A.—She was in the Follies—a very clever girl. She is very slight, not good looking but very fascinating.

The witness, according to the statement, was then shown photographs of Brownie Kennedy, which she said she did not recognize. She said she did not know Mosie Zoll, or Jimmie Munroe or Louis Cohen.

Atty. W. J. Flaherty counsel for Lyons

Theodore Bearse accused as plotter

PROTECTS "FRIEND"

She explained that a Mr. Powers as "a friend of mine," but declined to give his address in Brookline by saying: "I don't know why I should tell you where he lives, as they are my people."

James L. Donovan, wealthy Dorchester leather merchant, who was "shaken down" for $17,500 by the ring according to the "confession" of Mrs. Duggan and the testimony of Mrs. Reese was to take the stand today and tell his story.

It was expected he would relate how he was "lured" to Mrs. Duggan's apartment at No. 30 Buckminster street, Allston, "trapped" by open "detectives," and later relieved of $17,500 to soothe the feelings of Francis Duggan, the "injured" husband.

The 1921 statement, read by Mr. Hill, was made to former Assistant Attorney General Albert Hurwitz at the State House after State Police-

Judge Wm. Quinn

Atty. Jos. P. Walsh counsel

men Hale and Mitchell had called at her home in Falcon street, and requested her mother to have Mrs. Reese appear at the attorney general's office.

Judge Quinn told the jurors that he was allowing the statement in evidence only for the purpose of showing the conditions under which it was obtained and that they were not to consider the truth or falsity of the contents.

At the opening of the statement Mr. Hurwitz told Mrs. Reese that he was not making her any promises in exchange for her story. In reply to a question in the statement, said she was willing to tell her story provided her name was not mentioned. Mr. Hurwitz then said that her name would not be mentioned unless there were court proceedings. He added that he could not make any promise that she would not be called as a witness in case court proceedings were instituted.

HER STORIES CONFLICT

There were some minor discrepances between the story she told in the Attorney-General's office in November, 1921, and the testimony she gave in court this week. In court she insisted that following the "trapping" of Korn at No. 84 Hancock street, Cambridge, she telephoned to former District Attorney William J. Corcoran, as the result of prearrangement with Attorney Levenson.

In the statement of Hurwitz in 1921 she said she telephoned to the defendant J. Warren Kane following the "trapping" of Korn and that Atty. Corcoran came instead. She said she telephoned to Kane at his home in Roxbury, but that she did not remember the number at the time of making her statement.

In her court testimony Mrs. Reese insisted that both she and Mrs. Duggan had removed only their outside dresses when they went to bed with Korn.

According to her statement of November 5 she deposed that Korn and Mrs. Duggan were fully undressed and that she, Mrs. Reese, was partly dressed.

Mrs. Reese said in her statement that she cried after the Korn episode. When asked if she cried because she was just hysterical or because she was shamming, she replied: "I really cried, because I realized what I had done."

Previously, Mrs. Reese had been crossexamined by Joseph P. Walsh, counsel for William J. Corcoran.

Walsh immediately bombarded the witness with a rapid fire of questioning, to which she replied belligerently.

Q—I suppose you appreciate that if the story you have told here is believed by the jury it tends towards the conviction of Mrs. Duggan? A—Yes.

Q—Having that in mind you have still reported in detail all conversations between you and Mrs. Duggan? A—Yes.

Q—When you say you appreciated it would tend toward her conviction, has the question of friendship towards her entered your mind? A—Yes.

Q—Isn't it a fact that you have been governed by fear in your own heart? A—Possibly.

Q—Didn't you believe that unless you did tell it there might be danger to yourself? A—No.

TRIO IN BLACKMAIL CASE

Above, Lillian Hardy Reese, who broke down and went under severe cross-examination of Joseph P. Walsh, counsel for William J. Corcoran at the "Blackmail Ring" trial. Below, Mrs. Theresa Duggan, with whom she admits she trapped victims for shake-downs by the "ring," and right, J. Warren Kane. Original statement of Lillian Hardy Reese declared that she called him as her "lawyer" when she and Theresa Duggan framed Max Korn in her Cambridge apartment. She testified that she had sent for William J. Corcoran as the "lawyer."

KNEW ABOUT DONOVAN

Q—You knew considerable of Mrs. Duggan's relations with Mr. Donovan (James L. Donovan, one of those shaken down)? A.—Yes.

Q.—Weren't you in the Langdon with Mrs. Duggan and Donovan? A.—I don't recall.

Q—Do you remember when Mrs. Duggan was ill there? A.—Yes. She had typhoid fever.

Q—Did you visit her? A.—Yes.

Q—Did Donovan visit her? A.—I don't recall.

Q—Do you recall going downstairs with Donovan? A.—No. I don't recall it.

Q—You mentioned John Morgan in your testimony? A.—Yes.

Q—Did he call at the Cambridge flat? (John Morgan, Belmont automobile dealer, was brought into the case by Mrs. Reese, who testified that Levenson looked him up and found he didn't have sufficient money to be worth shaking down.) A.—I don't know.

Q—Do you remember Dr. George Perkins? A.—Yes.

Q—Did he call there? A.—Once or twice.

Q—Did he pay the rent? A.—No?

Q—Do you know Dr. McGrath? A.—Yes.

Q—He's a dentist on Washington street, isn't he? A.—Yes.

Q—Does he contribute to your support? A.—No. (Angrily.)

Q—Did you live on Copeland street at one time? A.—Yes.

Q—What number? A.—No. 16. I lived there one year.

Q—Did you met Donovan there? A.—No.

Q—Did you receive calls at any other place from Mr. Donovan? A.—I don't recall.

Q—You have been more than friendly with Mr. Donovan, haven't you? A.—No.

Q.—Haven't you been a go-between between Mrs. Duggan and Donovan? A.—I have not.

Q—Did you tell Mrs. Duggan yesterday that Donovan wanted her to call him up? A.—I don't recall.

TOLD DONOVAN TO CALL

Q.—Didn't Donovan tell you yesterday that he wanted to talk with Mrs. Duggan last night? A.—I don't recall that.

Q.—Didn't you tell Mrs. Duggan yesterday to call up Donovan? A.—Yes.

Q—Because Donovan told you to? A.—I did not.

Q.—What was your reason for telling her? A.—I had reasons of my own.

Q.—But you don't want to tell your reasons do you? A.—No. I don't see as it is necessary.

Q—Do you call Donovan 'J. L.'? A.—No.

Q.—Do you carry any messages for Donovan? A.—No, she replied.

Mrs. Reese gave her answers quickly, clearly and without hesitation. There was no indication of breaking down.

Q.—Is it the truth that you met Levenson through Mrs. Duggan? A.—Yes.

Judge E. L. McManus, Mrs. Duggan's counsel

J .W. Kane

Q.—Is it the truth that you met Levennon four years ago? A.—I believe it was more than four years ago.

Q.—Did you say on direct examination that you met William J. Corcoran six months after you met Levenson? A.—No.

KEEPS HOUSE

Q.—What is your present occupation? A.—At the present time I am keeping house for my mother.

Q.—How long have you been doing that? A.—Since last July.

Q.—Have you done sweeping and cleaning? A.—Yes.

Q.—Show me your hands?

At this point Judge Quinn interrupted, saying, "I want to say to counsel to exchange no glances with anyone in the courtroom."

"Does that refer to me?" asked Attorney Walsh of Judge Quinn.

"No," replied the court.

"All right," said Walsh, and then addressing the witness again, he asked her to lift her hands to the shelf of the witness stand in order that he might see them.

Mrs. Reese placed her hands upon the shelf and Walsh said "House work, he?"

"Yes," replied Mrs. Reese.

There was much laughter in the rear of the courtroom and a court officer warned two or three persons that they would be evicted from the room if he heard them.

Q—And Dr. Perkins visited you there, didn't he? A.—No.

Q.—I notice that you haven't mentioned the name of Silas Smith during your testimony. How is that? A.—I don't know why I should. I don't know him.

Q.—You know that Silas Smith is a state police officer don't you? A.—I don't know.

Q.—You heard Mr. Hill ask me to leave Smith's name out when he was reading Mrs. Duggan's confession didn't you? A.—N, I didn't.

Special Prosecutor Hill then interrupted by saying he did not make any such request.

Attorney Walsh said: "I leave it to the memory of the jury."

Q.—You recall that the name of Silas Smith was read to this jury? A.—Yes.

SMITH NOT PRESENT

The witness then said, "I never heard of Silas Smith until I heard his name read in court.

Q.—And so far as you were concerned Mr. Silas Smith was not present at any of the attempted shakedowns? A.—No.

Q.—Did State Officers Hale and Mitchell tell you when they first went to your house and asked you to appear at the attorney-general's office to make a statement you were likely to get into trouble if you didn't tell what happened? A.—I don't think they did.

Q.—You knew that the attempt to shake these men down was wrong, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—When you went to the Attorney-General's office to make a statement you know you were likely to be punished, didn't you? A.—No.

Atty. W. J. Flaherty counsel for Lyons

Atty. J. M. Cassidy for Leo Corcoran, Levenson's counsel

Q.—You know it now, don't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—When you went to the Attorney-General's office didn't you think you were in any danger? A.—No.

Q.—Do you recall saying you were afraid to go through on one case, but that Levenson told you it was all right because Tufts was in Cambridge? A.—Yes.

Mosette Had Many Victims in Boston

Thomas Mosette, known also as "Sir Thomas Mosette," was arrested in Ohio in 1920 and brought back to Boston, where he is alleged to have swindled scores of victims through spiritualistic trances.

The police charged at the time the medium had cleaned up about $1,000,000 in this country through his bee graft. Most of the victims, they said, were women.

He had been sought for four years. Mosette declared he would never serve time in prison because he could find a loophole in any law.

He operated in apartments furnished extravagantly. At one time the police of Boston had complaints against him indicating that he had mulcted his victims of $300,000.

LURE FOOTBALL OF LAWYERS

Theodore Bearse, with his little mustache, and that's all.

They're charged with blackmail, extortion, conspiracy and a few other things.

Facing "Big Bill" and the boys "Lill" has sat and told things that has had a reading public just snatching for papers.

Lill's told things that make snappy stories read like a Sunday school leaflet. Telling it was like sailing a canoe over Niagara Falls—the story just slipped out, like a greased pig going through a guy with mittens.

Special Prosecutor Hill helped "Lill" along the rough places and then sat down, which is the way of a prosecuter, leaving "Lill" flat, so to speak. "Lill" had told enough stuff to fill a book.

AWFUL DREAMS

Whereupon the nine or ten lawyers representing the eight blackmail defendants leaped to their feet and fairly fought to get at poor "Lill."

That was two days ago. Since then "Lill's" life has been just one lawyer after another.

If she sleeps when court adjourns and dreams we can safely judge what that dream is. It's this:

Two football teams composed of lawyers, little lawyers, big lawyers, fat lawyers, thin lawyers, hairy lawyers, bald lawyers, fast lawyers, slow lawyers, young lawyers, old lawyers, and just lawyers meet on the Harvard gridiron and have the most terrific struggle in history.

Ninety-nine field goals are kicked by both sides, making the game a tie whereupon an extra period is played.

That does not settle the question of supremacy so the contest is prolonged for two whole days, by playing. In this terrific contest "Lill" is the ball.

SICK OF LAWYERS

Never perhaps in legal history, in this State at least, was a lady so sick of a lawyer is as "Lill." One is reminded of the colored lady who [illegible] an admirer into court because he just beat her thin on graveyard stones. Said the lady to the judge, describing the man's twenty-minute pummelling:

"I never got so sick of a man in my life."

So with "Lill."

A vamp in history from Cleopatra down never had it so forcibly impressed upon her as has "Lill" that the wages of luring is lawyers.

Theresa Duggan shouldn't have walked out on "Lill" the way she did. It wasn't team work. They had starting traps together, drank Korn whiskey together, shared the blackmail jack after the shakedowns, shared the ring's Cambridge apartment, even the $75 "Big Bill" dug down and slipped them, according to "Lill" after one of the shakedowns had proved a bloomer because the sucker was broke.

TED'S RING IS REAL

Why didn't Theresa share lawyers with "Lill?" Well, the answer is that Teddy the lure was lured away. Imagine Teddy being lured.

So now as poor "Lill" bears the brunt of an onslaught of lawyers, each endeavoring over and over to blast hell of holes her story of the ring's nefarious workings, "Teddy," her pal, sits and twirls a diamond ring.

It is a ring she says she bought for $500, bought it after collecting her share of the Donovan "shake down."

In other words it is an honest to goodness, genuine blackmail ring.

She sits next to "Big Bill" Corcoran and every now and then if you're close enough you'll hear her say to Bill as some opinion on court etiquette is handed down by the learned judge:

"What does that mean?"

Theresa seemingly passed up the school room for the powder puff.

BATTLES ALONE

So "Lill" battles alone. Lill is the goat and each lawyer the wildcat. Once she cried. Broke down and wept. The girl who had turned up a sucker for shearing by the ring; who had slipped cards under doors to let the bogus detectives know when to walk in and frap a poor pucker; who had cut in on the graft—she cried. An' while she wept the court said "Recess."

Whereupon said "Teddy" her pal to "Big Bill," "What does that mean?"

"It means," said "Bill," "that we go out for a smoke.'

EMPLOYES OF 800 BOSTON A. & P. STORES CELEBRATE OPENING OF "GRANDMOTHER'S BREAD" BAKERY

A FEW OF THE LEADING LIGHTS IN THE LOCAL ORGANIZATION OF THE A. & P. CHAIN STORES AT THE OPENING OF THE BIG PLANT

More than 1,500 store managers, clerks, their relatives and friends attended the opening of the new bakery of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company on the grounds of the company's large warehouse, Fitchburg street, Somerville.

A reception was followed by inspection of the bakery. William J. Davidson of Brookline, manager of the New England territory, presided.

The various processes in the baking of a loaf of bread were explained by Mr. Davidson and other members of the large staff to groups of guests.

Today saw the execution of a plan to start bread deliveries to 800 stores of the chain in the Greater Boston district.

The entire baking process takes six hours, and under the present arrangements prior to the installation of a new oven, the Somerville plant is expected to turn out 500,000 loaves a week.

'PORK BARREL' RAIDS PLANNED BY CONGRESS, WARNS COUZENS

Detroit, Oct. 25 (C.N.S.).—Senator James Couzens today sounded a warning against the raid on the public treasury threatened by legislators who plan to attack the budget system and substitute for it a return to the old "pork barrel" style of voting public funds. He said:

"I have some intimation that there is going to be a movement in the next Congress to abolish the budget system and return to the old pork barrel methods. While I do not place much credence in the rumor, I want to say most emphatically that if such a movement is undertaken every representative in Congress who participates in it should be relegated to private life by his constituents."

Thomas Blumers to Join North Shore Colony, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS S. BLUMER are planning to join the year-round colony on the North Shore and will shortly move into their new home on Smith's Point, Manchester-by-the-Sea.

This Summer the Blumers occupied a small cottage on Bayard Warren's estate at Pride's Crossing while renovations were being made on their new abode. The latter place, I believe, was occupied a year ago by Mr. and Mrs. William Davies Sohier, Jr. (Elaine Denegre.)

Mrs. Blumer, who was formerly Miss Nancy Scott of Providence, is a petite woman, and most attractive. She is rather a close friend of stunning Mrs. Robert S. Potter, another member of the Manchester colony. The Blumers, who have two little girls, Nancy and Priscilla, spent last Winter in town at No. 290 Commonwealth avenue.

THREE of the proudest and most interested on-lookers at the recent Myopia steeplechase were Mrs. Alvin F. Sortwell and two of her little girls. They are seen above as they were snapped watching the riders on the Bradley Palmer estate at Topsfield where the meet was held.

Mrs. Sortwell and the little girls had ample reason to be proud on that occasion, as their husband and daddy, "Pete" Sortwell, won the fourth race for the Myopia Challenge Cup. The Sortwells are members of the year-round colony at Beverly Farms.

Mrs. Sortwell, who was formerly Miss Elsie Pollard, is carrying one of the cane seats so popular with society folk at sporting events of all kinds. You stick one end of it into the ground, unfold the two top sides —and presto! you have a seat.

MRS. JASPER WHITING is one of the sponsors for the two concerts to be given in Jordan Hall by graduates of the Debbs Ferry School. There is a notable list of sponsors for the concerts, which will take place on November 5th and December 3rd.

Mrs. Jasper Whiting
Bachrach Photo

Mr. and Mrs. Whiting have leased their home at No. 322 Beacon street for a period of two years, during which they plan extensive travels. At present Mrs. Whiting is still in Dublin, N. H., I believe.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES PELHAM CURTIS, JR. are making their home this Winter at No. 132 Marlboro street instead of on West Hill place, their former residence. Mr. Curtis only recently returned from a big game hunting expedition to Africa, where he went with his father, Charles P. Curtis, and his brother, Richard Curtis.

MRS. H. ADDINGTON BRUCE is of the prominent group interested in a rummage sale being held from 10 until 4 o'clock today at the Twentieth Century Club. The affair, which is being managed by Miss Gwendolen Scarritt and Mrs. Walter M. Pratt, is for the benefit of the educational work of the Boston League of Women Voters. There will be the usual tables of all sorts of clothing, bric-a-brac, jewelry and furniture at the sale.

MRS. ALVIN F. SORTWELL

Mrs. Sortwell (Elsie Pollard) and her two little girls found the recent Myopia Hunt Club races especially exciting when "Pete" Sortwell won the Myopia Challenge Cup.

TORRENTIAL RAINS END LONG DROUTH

After two days of almost uninterrupted rainfall, during which 2.12 inches of rain descended upon Boston and considerably larger amounts fell at various points throughout New England, the great drouth, which for so many months has seriously threatened this entire section of the country, is effectively broken.

From all sections of New England come reports of torrential rains.

EXPECT TO ADD TWO FEET TO GIRL'S HEIGHT

Chicago, Oct. 25.—How science can control the height of man or woman by treatment of the thyroid gland will be demonstrated at a clinic to be held in connection with the meeting here of the American College of Surgeons.

The surgeons are to discuss treatments now being given to a Chicago woman, twenty years old and thirty-eight inches tall, whose height is expected in time to be increased two feet by administration of extracts of thyroid glands. Intellectually the girl is normal.

The case is in charge of Dr. William Held, who recently returned from a study of gland treatments in Vienna and Dr. Benjamin H. Breakstone, reputed to be the first surgeon to have removed the thyroid gland successfully by local anaesthesia, in 1902.

Dr. Held said that through the knowledge of gland influences and the selective marriage of tall persons, a race of giants could be produced, and that reversing that, pigmies would be made to predominate.

Man's proud brain power has not lifted him as high above the lower animals as he thinks, according to Dr. William Mayo of Rochester, Minn., who addressed the College of Surgeons.

Most people, he said, man is only a quarter conscious of what his body is doing, he said. Three-quarters of the energy created by the food man eats and the air he breathes is spent without his knowing it, Dr. Mayo declared.

Man's will power is only about 25 per cent. efficient, the surgeon declared. Certain often misunderstood ailments result from the clash when the conscious mind attempts to gain control over the unconscious, Dr. Mayo said.

"Disturbances which more or less resemble real diseases are caused," Dr. Mayo said. "The trained observers know them to be false, but the unenlightened patient accepts them as true. Herein lies the success of the cults and quackeries, who play these diseases for the real thing and reap a harvest."

SAFETY PIN IN BABY'S VOCAL CORDS REMOVED AT HOSPITAL

The Quincy Hospital reported the successful removal from the vocal cords of a baby's throat of an open safety-pin. The child was the 11 months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Clohossey of 100 Faxon road, Norfolk Downs. A day or two ago the child awoke out of a sound sleep with terrible cries. Dr. Joseph Harkins, a throat specialist attached to the staff of the hospital, succeeded in getting the pin out without an operation after a delicate piece of work.

Dr. Harkins said the point of the pin lay in such a fashion that every time the baby breathed the point of the pin stuck in its throat.

FIND BONES OF ANCIENT RACE BURIED IN CALIFORNIA MOUND

Santa Barbara, Cal., Oct. 25.—Excavators representing the Smithsonian Institution today uncovered two skeletons at Burton Mound in this city which carry the human records far back beyond the dawn of history on this continent, in the opinion of J. P. Harrington, who has charge of the excavation.

The bones of the body were all but disintegrated, but the skulls were well preserved. These show a type of man almost of the gorilla order.

Beside the first skeleton was a beautiful black obsidian spear. The experts say the bones are those of a race antedating the native tribes in this vicinity.

STRAY BULLETS SHATTER WINDSHIELD OF AUTOMOBILE

Foxboro, Oct. 25.—The first wild shot of the hunting season was registered here when two bullets from a double-barrel shotgun shattered the windshield of an automobile standing in the yard of Peter J. Monaco of Granite street. Police Chief Ernest A. White is investigating.

Albany, Oct. 25.—Governor Smith saved Antonio Marino and Santo Susamano, sentenced to die in the electric chair today for the kidnaping and brutal murder of Giuseppe Varotta, Italian child, of New York city. The Governor commuted their sentences to life imprisonment upon the recommendation of Judge Talley of the Court of General Sessions and District Attorney Banton.

One Year or Fifty

In this paper there are probably one or more accounts of happily married couples who celebrated their golden wedding yesterday. Friends and family remembered the day with many appropriate and beautiful gifts.

For the fiftieth anniversary, like the twenty-fifth and a few others, is one which is generally remembered.

But anniversaries come every year, not every other or every five. People like to have them remembered and noticed by a gift of some sort. It need not be large or expensive unless you wish. It is the thought that counts.

We have many things to suggest as anniversary gifts —colored glass; finely etched crystal vases; leather goods for desk or table; silver for dining-room, library, or hall; clocks of all kinds; and many other things.

Our anniversaries have numbered one hundred and twenty-two. We believe that time and experience have taught us what will please others to receive on their 1923 anniversaries. May we aid you in your choice?

LLOYD GEORGE IN WASHINGTON FOR BUSY DAYS

Washington, Oct. 25.—Washington, prepared to crowd his hours here with the tribute of greeting and entertainment, extended the official welcome of the nation today to David Lloyd George, Great Britain's war-time Premier.

From the moment of his early arrival and greeting at the station by Third Assistant Secretary of State J. Butler Wright and Counselor Chilton of the British embassy, the former Premier's program for the first day, beginning with a call on Secretary Hughes, offered little opportunity for relaxation.

With his wife, Dame Margaret, and daughter, Megan, a busy three days also was in prospect. A suite at the New Willard Hotel was engaged for the former Premier and members of his family.

CALLS ON COOLIDGE.

Leaving the State Department, a call on President Coolidge at the White House was next on the distinguished visitor's program. Luncheon there with the President followed, with members of the cabinet invited to meet the former Premier.

Afternoon hours had been set apart to include the event to which Lloyd George has said he looked forward with especial pleasure his visit with Woodrow Wilson. It marks the first meeting of the American and British statesmen since their labor of months together in Paris in the framing of the Versailles treaty.

After tea at the British embassy, arrangements had been made for a visit by the former Premier to the Walter Reed Army Hospital. Dame Margaret and Miss Megan also were extended the hospitality of the White House by Mrs. Coolidge for tea in the afternoon. Tonight the former Premier will be the dinner guest of Secretary Mellon.

MT. VERNON VISIT.

Visits to Arlington National Cemetery and Mount Vernon, stopping at the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial will occupy the Lloyd George party tomorrow morning. In the afternoon the former Premier plans to call on Secretaries Weeks and Denby. He will dine with Secretary Hughes tomorrow night.

On Saturday, Secretary Weeks will accompany the former Premier and his wife and daughter on a motor trip from here to Gettysburg battlefield.

APPEALS ONE YEAR; GETS TEN IN PRISON

Brockton, Oct. 25.—Appealing a sentence of one year on a lower court conviction for breaking and entering, Eugene F. Collins succeeded in having the verdict set aside in Superior Court, but instead of a short term sentence in the House of Correction, a sentence of eight to ten years in State Prison was imposed by Judge F. W. Fosdick.

GOULD'S WIDOW FACES LOSS OF BIG FORTUNE

New York, Oct. 25.—Through the death of George J. Gould, litigation involving an accounting of the Jay Gould estate, covering 160 days of actual hearings in which more than 20,000 pages of testimony were taken and which cost hundreds of thousands of dollars, will come to naught, if the contentions of counsel for the late Mr. Gould are upheld by Supreme Court Justice Vernon M. Davis.

Appearing at a hearing before Justice Davis today, William Wallace, Jr., counsel for Gould in the accounting proceedings, opposed the substitutions of executors of the latter's estate as parties to the suit.

Mr. Wallace contended that George J. Gould's account as trustee of the Jay Gould fortune has reverted to his estate and must now be handled through the Surrogate's Court or in some other proceeding.

The accounting suit, must be ended without a decision as a result of M. Gould's death, the attorney asserted.

If the claim of other beneficiaries of the Jay Gould estate that $20,000,000 was due from George J. Gould is upheld, all assets of the latter's estate might be absorbed, Mr. Wallace indicated. This would deprive Gould's widow, Guinivere Sinclair Gould, and her three children, of their share of the estate. Mrs. Gould was bequeathed the income from $4,000,000 for life, the principal upon her death, to go to her children.

The seven children of Edith Kingdon Gould, first wife of George J. Gould, however, would receive additional sums as heirs of the Jay Gould estate, which would be swelled by allowance of the claim.

HUNTERS MUST NOT SHOOT NEAR HOMES

William C. Adams, director of the State Division of Fisheries and Game, in connection with the opening of the season on upland game, has issued a special appeal to gunners to refrain from hunting or discharging firearms in or near the thickly-settled parts of towns or close to houses. Each year the division receives many complaints from all parts of the State concerning the practices of a few careless hunters who persist in shooting close to habitations.

TWO LYNN BOYS FATALLY CRUSHED BY AUTOMOBILES

Two Lynn boys are dying, both being crushed by automobiles.

Pinned between two machines driven by unidentified drivers, Frederick Moore, twelve years old, a cripple living at No. 144 Williams street, Lynn, was hurled dying to the street, his crutches broken beneath him.

The accident happened on Fayette street, Lynn. The two drivers, proceeding in opposite directions, fled, pursued by several automobilists who witnessed the accident. Both escaped. Moore was taken to Lynn Hospital where his name was placed on the danger list. It is feared that he suffered a fracture of the skull.

Benjamin Roman, fourteen years old, of No. 220 Summer street, Lynn, is dying at the Lynn Hospital from injuries received when crushed by an auto truck driven by Aristominis Koulouneras, of No. 98 Bartholomew street, Peabody. The accident happened near the youth's home when Koulouneras backed up the truck, pinning the boy to a tree.

COLLAPSES IN BARBER'S CHAIR, DIES LATER

An unidentified man collapsed while taking a shave in the barber shop at No. 1102 Washington street, South End, and died while on the way to the City Hospital.

He was about forty-five years old, had red hair and mustache and wore a dark suit, black shoes and stockings.

A pawn ticket with the name C. P. McAubrey, No. 43 Union Park street, South End, was found in his possession. Police who investigated that address declared that no such man was known there.

FORMER BOSTON COP ARRAIGNED AS SLUGGER

Harry Barlow, Methuen patrolman, who a year ago resigned from the Boston police under official pressure arising from a report he made to the effect that he had stopped an automobile driven by Mrs. William Gillian, and found another woman's arm around her, was held before Lawrence court charges with assault and battery. Decision was reserved.

Harry Barlow.

The plaintiff, George J. Wright, of No. 46 Tenney street, Lawrence, alleges that Patrolman Barlow knocked him unconscious in Methuen square on September 2. Wright declares he was waiting for a friend when the defendant requested him to "move on."

Wright demurred, and the officer is alleged to have knocked him down with a stiff right to the jaw. William Sullivan of No. 2 Mystic street, Lawrence, a witness, remonstrated with the officer, but was booked at the police station for obstructing an officer. That case is still pending in court.

SELFRIDGE'S OWNER GUEST OF FILENE

One of the big department stores of the world is in London.

It is Selfridge's.

Its owner, H. Gordon Selfridge, is in Boston, a guest of E. A. Filene.

He has a message. It is this: "Don't hustle, but think. Be calm, have poise. The American habit of hustling in business is undignified. What the world needs is less hustling and more thought. Unless there is greater development of thought in the world we will soon have to acknowledge that the zenith of civilization has been reached."

HAVERHILL LIQUOR CHARGES COLLAPSE

Haverhill, Oct. 25.—Albert L. Bartlett, police commissioner, threw a bombshell into a meeting of the Anti-Saloon League in High School hall when he asked R. P. Hatton, general secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, and Malcolm Davis, district secretary, to "name the twenty mythical booze joints in Haverhill."

Witnesses declare that the two prohibition league officers refused to do so.

Both speakers had delivered a tirade against the local police force, charging that drunkenness was rife in the city, and that "Demon Rum" was running wild through the city. They sought to corroborate that by reading twenty affidavits of special investigators, who declared that drunkenness prevails in all sections of the city.

'STOLEN BOY' TELLS OF HARDSHIPS ON NOVA SCOTIA FARM

I could shoot him now for what he did to me I'd be happy.

LOVED LITTLE GIRL

There was a little girl in the house, too. They call her Gertrude White. I thought she might be my sister. She was nice to me and I gave her lots of little presents. Guess I loved her she was so nice.

But I hated Alice and the man who lived there, this Harold Smith. They sent me to a school in Center street one day. I only went there a couple of times. I didn't like the teacher, Miss Norton. So one day I told Alice I wouldn't go. I came home crying and she beat me awful with a stick of wood. She hurt me terrible. I cried hard.

While I was there at her house a man named Elijah Stainwhite used to call to see her. He was an old man and he used to beat me, too, when he got drunk. Once he was going to shoot himself. I wish he had. I wouldn't have had to go through with what I did afterward.

SENT TO REFORM SCHOOL

I was with Alice White for half a year, I guess, when she had me sent away to the Reform school. A man came to the house and Alice told her I wouldn't go to school and wouldn't obey my mother—that was her, she told the woman.

After the woman called, a big man came. They took me to the police station. Then I went on a train with a "detective" and we finally came to the State school for boys near Portland. There were 400 other boys there. We worked out in the fields and got "mush and milk" to eat.

Gee, I wished then that I had a good father and mother to come and find me and take me out. But I said to myself: "Guess I never did have any, like other fellers."

I got my share of lickings with the other boys and not much schooling. I think I was there about three years in all. They had to let me out one day. An officer took me to the train and said I was going to Canada to work for a man there. He bought me a ticket for Bangor and gave me a big package of lunch. There were sandwiches and cookies—they said it would last till I got to Canada.

POOR GUESSERS

They didn't guess very good because I didn't get to Canada for more than two weeks. When we got to Bangor I left the depot to see if I couldn't find Alice White or Harold Smith. I didn't find them.

Next morning a man at the depot put my name—"Johnny White," on a big ticket. He wrote down the name of the man I was going to in Canada and the name of the place. Guess it was so's the conductor would know where to put me off. They tied the tag on my buttonhole.

I rode away from Bangor in the train for a few hours to a place I think they call McAdam. A man in a uniform came in and told me to get off. There was something wrong about my ticket. McAdam was up near where this country and Canada come together.

HE LIVED HIGH

They took off the ticket I had tied to my button hole and told me I was again' to stay in McAdam a while. I was there two weeks living high, in the house of the station agent. You know, I was about 11 years old then. I had been living on "mush and milk" and lickings so long I was tickled to death when I got good meat and "spuds."

I was sorry to leave the kind station agent. I had to go, though. They fixed up another ticket and sent me away into Canada on another train.

Remember very well the day I got to Halifax. I didn't know nothin' about Halifax then but NOW—Gee I'll always remember that place all my life.

Who do you suppose met me at the station with a hired automobile? It was the man who used to beat me so much at Alice White's house. I mean Elijah Stainwhite, the old rascal.

He had a woman with him. Said it was his wife. Said I was "bound out to him to work."

"BAD MAN FOR FAIR"

Holy Smoke! Gee what a thing to do to me! He was a bad man for fair. But what could I do? I had to eat. So I hopped in the machine and we drove out in the country.

After he drove 'bout twenty miles we came to a town. He called it "French Village." That's where he lived, Elijah said. We went right through the town to his farm. It was a big place with a big house.

"Come on there, 'Johnny' White, here's where you're agoin' to stop my lad—here's where you're agin' to earn yer keep." I hopped out hungry as a bear.

"Guess I'd like something to eat now," I told them.

"You'll eat when you're done some work—not until," he yelled at me.

LOADS OF WORK

And believe me I had to work too. There were two horses, eight cows, 250 hens, pigs and a steer. I had to take care of all the animals before I got my supper.

I found the house full of people when I went in. Seems Elijah had married his second wife. She brought him a big family of sons and daughters. Some of them were married and had their wives and husbands there. They filled the big house "chock a-block."

They gave me a good bed. I was glad of that after sleeping on the hard cots in the reform school.

There were his sons: "Kennie," the youngest, Creighton and Lawrence, who was married and had two "kids"; Berton, married with two "kids"; Clifford, married with three "kids," and Wesley, married with four or five "kids." Maggie Stainwhite was married. She had her husband and two boys. Maud Stainwhite was married. Her husband was there with eight children, and Helen, married. She didn't have any "kids." That's how there was a bed left for me I guess.

Did you ever hear of a place like that. 'Bout thirty men and women and "kids." And the "old man" and I were the only ones who really had to work.

PLENTY OF LICKINGS

I was up "before sun" to do my chores. I didn't get any breakfast 'till after the chores were done. Gee! How I worked up there in Nova Scotia. Like to die with work and lickings from the "old man."

Besides getting "ragged" with horsewhips, wagon-tongues and the likes, "Kennie" Stainwhite used to take "a fall" outa me once in a while. He "busted" me in the right eye once, and you can see where it's sunk in from it.

Well, I stayed on there at Elijah's place until some time last Summer the first was my uncle—came to me. The old man—he told me at me in the cowbarn and said: "Kid, you'll have to git off this. You ain't no kin of mine. You'll hev to shift for yourself."

I asked him for some money to get to Bangor. He told me "go hang." Gee, what a son of a gun he was to me.

TOLD OVERSEERS

Well I heard of the overseers of the poor. So I trudged down the road to the village. I told 'em about it. They went right back at old Elijah and he had to pay me. Gave me enough to buy a ticket for to pay my way back to Bangor and America. I hated Nova Scotia.

When I got to Bangor I didn't know what to do. First night I thought I might go to Harold Smith's house. He wouldn't let me in so I had to sleep in the park opposite the Bangor House.

I was terribly hungry in the morning. "Got to get a job or starve," I thought. After trudgin' 'round town all day I landed a job from a man named Rogers. He hired me to do "barrowin'" on a road-fixing job a little way out of Bangor. I worked with pan and earn'd $10 a week. My back ached so that I had to quit after two weeks.

Loafed around with the $20 in my pockets. Went to movies and such. I like Western pictures with Indians and detectives and scouts. Bought me a revolver and a belt o' cartridges. Strapped on the "shootin' iron" and belt and walked around a bit. Nobody got into trouble so's I could help them out with the revolver so I took 'em to a room I hired up in what they call "The Devil's Half-Acre"—you know where "Rube" McKinnon's saloon used to be.

NOW A DISH WASHER

When the money was gone I found another job. Got $5 a week for washing dishes in the Crystal restaurant.

It wasn't a good job for a "man" who had earned $10 a week, so I got through there quick. Then I jumped into a job at the University restaurant. I was fourteen years old and I was sure I was worth a dollar a week for every year. So they gave $14 a week and my board.

That was pretty good. I worked hard until I took a bad turn. I used to wear puttees around my legs in the kitchen and they swelled my legs and feet up pretty bad. I couldn't work. Then I tried to rest up and quit work—I had to.

When all my money was gone again I had to leave my room. I was hard put for a place to sleep. I wandered about town a bit and finally "turned in" on a bench in the park again.

AWAKENED BY COPS

My poor legs ached something fierce. It was many hours before I fell asleep. I rolled over on the bench and almost fell off when a hand touched me. A light shined in my eyes. It was a "cop" and he wanted to ask me questions.

"Where'd you come from" and "who are you" and what you doin' here?" he asked me.

How could I answer all three at once. I wasn't even awake yet. Well he called the patrol and they gave me a ride to the police station in Bangor. I stayed in a cell there that night for a while. They then took me out to the Eastern Maine General Hospital out Veazie way.

There the doctors took a picture of my legs and let me go. It was the city farm for me then. The cops said I could stay there until I got better. Two weeks after I was all better I left the place.

Another instalment of the absorbing life story of Andrew Griffin, the "Stolen Boy," who has been found by his mother after a seven-year search, will appear in the Boston American tomorrow.

'PIERCING EYE' ELOPER TO BE FORGIVEN

Leominster, Oct. 25.—Elodia Joyal, sixteen years old, and her thirty-two-year-old sweetheart, Louis Julian, alias Lougi Guiliamo, who is alleged to have lured her from her home here by his "piercing eye," were caught in Brimfield and returned here, where they may receive forgiveness.

The girl was returned to her home, while Julian was arrested on a charge of enticing the girl from home. He was released in $1,000 bail.

The couple fled from this city three days ago in a taxi. The mother of the girl, Mrs. Mary Joyal, at that time suspected that Julian had lured the girl away and told the police that it was the man's piercing, hypnotic eye that fascinated her daughter.

Now that the girl is back, Mrs. Joyal declares she and her husband may relent and allow the couple to marry.

"My daughter says she loves Louis," Mrs. Joyal said, "and cannot live without him and Louis says he loves the girl. So, after I have a talk with my husband we may decide to let them get married and give them our blessing."

CHANGE OF LIFE LOSES TERRORS

For Women who Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Pa.—"I took your medicine through the Change of Life and it did wonders for me. I was down in bed when I started to take it and weighed 96 pounds. I had hot flashes and was so nervous and weak that everything would get black and I could not see. I would sit and cry and did not know what I was crying for. Since I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel younger than I did ten years ago, and my friends all tell me I look younger, and I owe it all to the Vegetable Compound. I do all my housework for a family of seven now. I will be glad to answer any woman who writes me in regard to my case."—Mrs. JOHN MYERS, 55 Union St., Greenville, Pa.

Many letters similar to this have been published testifying to the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They are sincere expressions from women who describe as best they can their feelings before and after taking this well-known medicine.

Goodbye, Reparations

If Bismarck Met Kaiser

News Samples

Hark, the Wizard

Current Events

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, by Star Company.

WITH A LOAF of bread in Germany costing five billion marks—which would have been $1,250,000,000 in the old days—the intellectual Allies are beginning to set aside all question of reparations. They are wondering whether they can hold Germany together and prevent the appearance of another and worse "Russia." France says she'll pay us when Germany pays her. Uncle Sam will charge five billions to experience.

SMUTS, ABLE PREMIER of South Africa, wants the British Empire to interfere with France and decide on some definite course for Germany to prevent chaos there.

England wants a prosperous Germany with which she may trade.

France wants a ruined, broken Germany which she need not fear. If she can have, as Marshal Foch planned it, a Protestant North Germany and a Catholic South Germany, separated and hating each other, so much the better. When Germans hate Germans, Frenchmen may sleep peacefully.

YESTERDAY'S latest news must have pleased the French. The Palatinate, rich, important section of Germany, declares itself free of the German Republic. What is more important, it agrees to defend the safety of France and pay its share of German reparations.

IF BISMARCK could come back and call on the former Kaiser in Holland, he would have some things to say to him.

That Kaiser, reading the news, must remember the day when he threw Bismarck overboard, convinced that he, the Kaiser, without help, could look after the empire that Bismarck had established.

What a big man creates, needs a big man as caretaker.

WHAT'S THE NEWS? ■■■ kinds:

The French government is negotiating for business dealings with Russia. And Russia is modifying her statement that she will never pay her debt to France.

AN AMERICAN lady gets from an American jury five thousand dollars, paid by a man who forcibly embraced her. The lady, Mrs. Alice Mercer, asked for fifty thousand dollars.

CHINESE bandits were beaten in the attempt to capture another passenger train, and Princess Hermine, wife of the ex-Kaiser, is busy in politics, hoping to become Empress. Such a lady would have started housekeeping in the middle of the Johnstown flood.

THIS COUNTRY, with untold millions of tons of coal below the ground, is importing 100,000 tons from Wales, and incidentally half a dozen middlemen get their share of profits on the hard coal mined here.

THERE SEEMS to be real hope for asthma and hay fever victims. So one surgeon in Chicago tells the other surgeons gathered there. Whoever conquers hay fever, asthma and poison ivy will deserve a monument as high as Pike's Peak.

IMPERIAL Wizard Nnass, of the Ku Klux, is worried, because in this country only a "little more than a third are of native Anglo-Saxon stock." Would the distinguished Wizard have kept out Christopher Columbus? He hadn't a drop of Anglo-Saxon blood in his veins, although he did have, on his mother's side, a good supply of Jewish blood.

WIZARD EVANS objects to the Jew "because he is unblendable." Yet Disraeli, in England, "blended" well enough to make Victoria Empress of India.

Gambetta in France, "blended" to the extent of establishing the French Republic, following the stupidity of Napoleon the Third after 1870.

Heine "blends" pretty well with the best literature this earth has produced.

And Spinoza, another Jew, is "blended" in the best thinking processes of every philosopher, Jew and Gentile.

That's the way the matrimonial scores stands now for them.

They're going to get married and when they do, it'll be a wedding of grandparents.

She's fifty-six and so is he.

FANNED BADLY.

The average shows their scores in the nuptial league. Mrs Hanley married badly in her first trip to the altar. Her husband was Frank Simonds of Lynn. She asked waivers on him for cruelty and duties.

Her next attempt was with Henry Hanley, who courted her for nine years before being rejected and was killed in an automobile accident last January.

Nine and twice has gone out of the league by the release route since his first wife died, seventeen years ago.

WONDERFUL COOK.

"Mrs. Hanley is a wonderful cook," said he today. "That's why I asked her to marry me."

"Our courtship was full of fun," said Mrs. Hanley today. "At first our past divorces got us all tangled up, but we swapped papers and everything came out all right."

Mrs. Hanley lives with a daughter in Somerville, after giving up her home in White Plains. Evans lives at 212 Columbus avenue.

POLICE BUILD VAULT TO GUARD LIQUOR

Peabody, Oct. 25.—To prevent thieves from getting any of the choice $40,000 stock of seized liquors in a cell in the police station, Chief of Police Grady is now supervising the work of carpenters installing a cache of heavy timbers to hold the liquor.

The new vault, the chief believes, will be absolutely burglar-proof and professional hi jackers or mere amateur booze-hunters will not only have to overcome such resistance as will be offered by officers in the station at the time of their call, but will also have to rip out a five-foot planking studded with heavy steel bands before accomplishing their purpose.

ALIMONY IS GIVEN MRS. KENNARD

Wife of Ex-Army Captain Wins Freedom After Proving Conspiracy Charges

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Ethel Overhalt Kennard, former Cleveland society girl, who was married to Capt. Reginald P. Kennard soon before the latter left for eighteen months' service overseas in the World War, was granted a divorce by Judge William H. Sawyer of Concord, who heard the case last fall.

Reginald P. Kennard, Jr., now five years old, was given into the custody of his mother by the court decree.

Kennard is ordered to pay $50 a month alimony, and assign $60,000 to William E. Marvin trustee, from a trust fund of his grandfather, William Schaus. To make sure that Kennard made the assignment he was placed in the custody of Sheriff Spinney until he executed it.

TESTIMONY IN SECRET.

Because of its sensational nature, the case, which lasted several weeks, was, after the first few days, heard behind closed doors. Kennard had asked for a divorce on the ground that his health had been undermined by his wife's extreme cruelty. The pretty wife brought a counter suit and charged her mother-in-law, Mrs. Wilhelmina S. Kennard, with conspiring with other members of her husband's family to alienate her husband's affections.

It was brought out during the trial that the elder Mrs. Kennard had opposed her son's marriage, and had consented on the condition that there would be no children. That stipulation was deliberately violated, according to the mother-in-law.

Among sensational allegations by Mrs. Ethel Overhalt Kennard was one that Victor Kennard, famous Harvard halfback, and brother of her husband, located her sister, Marjorie Overhalt, in the Ohio State Hospital for the Insane, obtained by means of bribery, a photograph of the unfortunate girl and used that picture in a plot between the mother and son to cause a break between the army captain and his wife.

CHARGES CONSPIRACY.

She alleged her mother-in-law and her brother-in-law, Victor, conspired to separate Reginald and herself while Reginald was in France with his army and she was at Long Island with her infant son.

The elder Mrs. Kennard brought charges of a "nightie escapade" in the hallway of a Magnolia, Mass., hotel in which the younger Mrs. Kennard figured.

She said she was aroused by a noise in the hall and looking from her door, saw the girl attired in a flimsy night gown, rapping at the door of a man who was "not her fiance," and murmuring endearments. When the girl saw her, she said, she flew to her room. The young wife denied these allegations.

ALIMONY $10,000,000 OF STOKES AT STAKE

Money, Not Freedom, Is What the Aged Husband Is Fighting For

New York, Oct. 25.—The big stake of the battle waged by W. D. Stokes is not freedom from the bonds of wedlock which would give him the opportunity to marry again. He has been married twice and has been laid low in the battle of Broadway.

His big fight is for his money, for should the little woman he is attacking now for the second time in the Supreme Court come out victor she will retain her dower rights in his estate—a one third interest in the income from Stokes' formidable real estate holdings.

It is estimated that these, consisting of forty nine pieces in New York including the Hotel Ansonia, valued at $6,000,000, amount to all told $10,000,000. The dower share of Mrs. Stokes will be about $150,000 a year. It is estimated.

Without a divorce granted him the "cold cove" cannot dispose of a bit of his real property without his wife's consent. That is the real fight and the stakes are so high that neither side is giving or taking anything it can avoid.

If Mrs. Stokes should lose she would be an outcast, practically penniless and with two children.

MRS. STOKES' "DOUBLE."

Mrs. Margaret Poll, pretty, fair haired wife of a Wall Street broker who strikingly resembles Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, except for the color of her hair, took the stand in the divorce trial and exploded the story of Stokes witnesses by testifying that she, and not Mrs. Stokes, had been the guest of W. L. Pepperman in his Bethel, Ct., home.

Samuel Untermyer, attorney for Mrs. Stokes, asked the defendant to stand.

"Have you ever seen this lady before?" he asked Mrs. Poll pointing to Mrs. Stokes, who had been requested to stand up.

"Never in my life before now," Mrs. Poll answered.

BROADCASTERS DEFY AUTHORS; RADIO HITS

Despite warnings from the Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers, Station WNAC, the Shepard Stores, broadcast excerpts from the operetta "Caroline," with Harold Murray and Myrtle Lingaf, now appearing in the show at the Majestic Theatre, singing into the microphone.

Paul Amundsen, attorney for the society, yesterday served notice on Jan Shepard, Jr., that the making of the Majestic that he would file damage suits against them if they put on the musical hits of the show, on the grounds that it would be a violation of the copyright law.

But John Shepard, 3d, after communicating by long distance telephone with Lee Shubert, producer of the show, announced that the broadcasting of the musical numbers from "Caroline" would go on. Lee Shubert asserting he holds all the producing rights of the show, which give him the permission to broadcast.

The Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers assert that the Shepard Stores station has no license from them to broadcast their music which is under copyright. Radio experts expect that the controversy will develop into a test court case.

IF SKIN IS UGLY OR BREAKS OUT APPLY SULPHUR

Says Mentho-Sulphur Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

FORD BACKERS DO NOT PLAN THIRD PARTY

Detroit, Oct. 25.—Not to form a third party, but to decide upon the best manner of assuring Henry Ford's election to the Presidency of the United States, is the purpose of the National Ford-for-President conference to be held at Dearborn, Dorchester, it is according to the statement of Judge Edward J. Jeffries, who presided at the meeting early this week from which the conference call was issued.

"If there is enough use of country in the Republican leadership or enough sense in the Democratic leadership, Ford may be nominated on either ticket," Judge Jeffries said. "Mr. Ford's friends, however, do not purpose to be hookeyed into a pocket and presented as a pliant ing his candidacy before the American people. If a third party is necessary to elect Mr. Ford President, it undoubtedly will be formed, as Mr. Ford's friends believe the American people want him for President, and they are not particular how they get him."

The leaders in Ford-for-President Club executive committee will meet tomorrow night to consider the advisability of formally asking Mr. Ford if he will accept a run for the Presidency if a nation-wide demand for his candidacy becomes evident.

DORCHESTER GIRL INJURED BY AUTO

Pegna L. Ritchie, twelve years old, of No. 167 Washington street, Dorchester, was taken to the City Hospital suffering from injuries received when struck by an automobile in front of her home. It is feared that she received concussion of the brain. The machine was driven by Benjamin Fineberg, of No. 7 Market street. Lynn.

DR. CALDWELL'S
SYRUP PEPSIN
Keeps him in good health

Clogged-Up? Here's Quick Aid

NEVER mind what you are using now for constipation. For all you know there is a better remedy! The next time you are clogged up try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a laxative successfully used for 30 years, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Mrs. John A. Goins of Butlerville, Ind., constipated all her life, her stomach injured from years of pill taking, is now functioning daily since taking Syrup Pepsin; and Mr. David O'Connor of Canton, Ohio, suffering steadily for three years, got relief after a few doses. The list of successful users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is naturally large as over 10 million bottles are sold annually.

Formula on Every Package

Get yourself a bottle at a drug store, the cost being less than a cent a dose. Take a spoonful at bedtime for a few nights and we guarantee that the most chronic constipation will be relieved, or refund your money. A few doses in succession soon train the stomach muscles to act for themselves. Many, however, take it once a week and in that way keep the bowels regularly open. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a doctor's prescription, but druggists such as calomel, "candy cathartics," salt waters and powders, is a simple vegetable laxative compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with tasty aromatics which are entirely harmless.

This Remedy Guaranteed

It has been accurately proven that a constipated person is only 75 per cent efficient. It slows you up; makes you dull and lazy. Take Syrup Pepsin the first day you do not have complete bowel movement. Take it, guaranteed, for constipation, torpid liver, dyspepsia, biliousness, sour stomach, headache, lack of appetite. A spoonful at the first symptom of these ills will kill a cold overnight. Half the ailments of winter start with constipation followed by a cold.

LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

THE STORY SO FAR:

Larry Delavan, a fashionable young man in the days when Fulton was perfecting his steamboat in New York, expects that his stepfather will leave him his large fortune. When John Jacob Astor reads the will he discovers that all the property goes to a nephew, Patrick O'Day, in Ireland. Astor is made trustee and Larry guardian of the heir. Delavan is terribly disappointed. The O'Day family is about to be evicted from their poor home in Ireland, when a strange solicitor appears and informs them of their good fortune. Patricia, disguised as her brother, who dies on the trip, and her father, arrive in New York. Delavan becomes interested in Robert Fulton's steamboat and promises $10,000 of the expenses. Pat acts queerly for a boy, but Delavan does not suspect. Pat's father dies, making her swear never to reveal her identity to Delavan.

"WHAT manner are you in?" said Hallock. But then he laughed "Of course, I'll not tell him, Pat. Why shouldn't you see Mr. Astor if you've a mind to do so? Come with me."

He led Pat back into the counting room. Astor was busy at his desk Great real estate maps of the city were spread before him; he was adding figures He smiled as he saw Pat

"Hello, you, boy," he said "Sit down beside me here Hallock—will you put on your hat and tell Delmonico that I am ready now to talk to him about the lease he wants in Beaver street."

"Yes, sir," said Hallock He stood in awe of Astor

"Now, what can I do for you my boy?" said Astor

"Please—you can give me ten thousand dollars of my money," said Pat.

"Ten—thousand—dollars" said Astor He leaned back in his chair, staring at Pat in his surprise. "My boy—that is a great sum of money. Men have worked all their lives long and never known what it was to earn so much. And you come in and ask for it as if it might be for a shilling."

"But—the money's mine," said Pat—who stood in awe neither of Astor nor any other man

"So—so—but with conditions yet awhile," said Astor "Your uncle knew that you were young, as you are and he has named me to see to it that your money is wisely spent, in ways that will bring you profit and good use, until you are old enough to have learned some wisdom for yourself

But I shall never want to see Astor again," said Pat pleadingly

"And you must remember this" Astor went on, as if Pat had not spoken at all, "This money is not mine—it is yours. When you are twenty-one it will be my duty to give it all to you. And first, I must go before the judge, and tell him how I have cared for what was yours. I must account for every penny I have spent. What should I tell him of this ten thousand dollars if I gave it to you when you ask?"

"Sure and that I asked for me own" said Pat

"Ja—and what would he do then, think you?" said Astor. "He would say: That is all very fine, Mr. Astor But here is ten thousand dollars gone from this estate. You say this boy spent it. But you were responsible. So—you will give back that money—or I will send you to jail.' That is the way it would be."

Pat stared.

"Sure, and it's a queer country where your own is not your own at all," she said

"But will tell me for what you want this money—no? Perhaps you are right Perhaps I should give it to you Who knows? But you must be true first

"Sure and that was just what I was after wantin' not to do" Pat said. "But I and—if I must I must But we'll say I promise not to betray In sayin' it I shall be

WARD TO PULL 'SNEAK' PUNCH ON SHEVLIN AGAIN IF HE CAN

INTENDS TO FIGHT FROM BELL IN FIRST ROUND

By JACK CONWAY

Sam Golden, keen judge of boxers, says George Ward of Elizabeth, N. J., will be the next welterweight champion of the world. Sam also has gone on record as picking Ward to win over Eddie Shevlin in New England welterweight champion, in their ten round bout at the Suffolk A. A.'s show [illegible] Boston Arena tomorrow night. Perhaps the fact [illegible] also increases the punching power of the particular ring warrior.

Golden is not the type of manager who wastes time dashing [illegible] preliminary boxers. Sam has been in the big money for more than fifteen years. He has managed Jack Britton, Johnny Wilson, George Ward and other equally famous ring men.

Golden, like most other people, made one big mistake in his life. He refused to become manager of Jack Dempsey.

Sam pulled his star "bone-head" back in the days when Kid Zisse, Providence n-washer, used to eat fish cakes and beans with Dempsey at New York one arm joints

GOLDEN "TOO BUSY" TO TAKE OVER DEMPSEY

Dempsey had fought John Lester Johnson, colored heavyweight, without setting the world afire. Jack was around New York wondering where he was going to get his next meal.

It was suggested to Golden that he take over Dempsey and try to develop the big fellow. Sam was too busy with other propositions to give Dempsey any consideration. This mistake probably cost Golden a million dollars.

The Newark [illegible] boxmaker is not worrying over the fact he failed to [illegible] with the last appearance in the Dixie parade and now believes he has a coming champion in the person of Ward.

"Ward is the greatest fighter in the welterweight division. Golden recently told this writer. "George is only twenty-three years old, which means he has many years of ring usefulness ahead of him.

"Ward has always been an amazing boxer. He is also a heavier puncher than most people give him credit for being. He almost knocked Shevlin out with the left hook to the jaw when he scored immediately after the bell sounded in the first round of their last bout.

"There has been a great deal of controversy about that blow. The Shevlin camp seems to think Ward was guilty of unsportsmanship. Since when did it become necessary for a boxer to tell his opponent when and where he was going to strike him?

SAYS WARD HAD RIGHT TO FIGHT FROM BELL.

"I always thought a bout started when the bell sounded at the opening of the first round. Shevlin should know this much.

"You didn't see Dempsey and Firpo doing any Alfonso and Gaston act when they met. It was fight from the bell.

"Ward was within his rights when he socked Shevlin with a left hook to the jaw. He'll do it again on Friday night if the opportunity presents itself.

"We took the Shevlin match just to prove that Ward's victory was not scored on a fluke. At Revere a year ago, Ward made the mistake of trying to box Shevlin and thus lost the de[illegible]. The way to win over Shevlin is to fight toe to toe, punching every second you are in the ring.

"If Ward wins, he'll be prepared to battle any welterweight in the world. He has already defeated Mickey Walker twice in no-decision matches. A rough, tough, wide-open fighter like the champion is always easy for the masterful Ward."

SHEVLIN TO CARRY BATTLE TO RIVAL.

If Ward expects to have easy sailing tomorrow night, he is doomed to be disappointed. Shevlin has been training at Kelly & Hayes' gym and is in splendid condition. Eddie is showing more viciousness than ever. He is determined to get revenge for the reverse he recently suffered at the hands of Ward.

"The sneak punch in the first round caused my defeat," said Shevlin. "It was an unsportsmanlike act for Ward to sock me when I offered to shake hands. Of course George was within his rights, but I wouldn't have pulled such a mean trick myself.

"I was dazed and groggy after that blow. My head never cleared for the rest of the bout.

"I shall make Ward pay dearly for his act. I shall not show him any mercy. I shall punch and batter him around the ring as I have never done to any of my other opponents."

Apparently everybody wants to be on hand when the excitement starts, judging from the heavy demand for reservations at the office of the Suffolk A. A. at No. 309 Washington street.

HARVARD HAS A SCRIMMAGE IN THE MUD

With a bitter cold wind driving a heavy downpour of rain into their faces, the Harvard varsity and the scrubs battled for nearly a half hour in the confines of the stadium.

At the close of the scrimmage the score stood [illegible] Neither team was able [illegible] yard field for a touchdown.

Leland Littlefield

The varsity was in position to score several times during the afternoon, caused by the slippery surface of the ball, clogged up the works and so ruined the varsity offensive drives.

Brilliant backfield play was out of the question because of the slippery turf. Fay was restricted to closed formation offensive tactics directed at the centre of the line. Fumbling and poor footing made the scrimmage as sloppy as the weather.

The varsity lined up with Crosby and Ken Hall at the wings. Buck Coates, Western "caveman," and Dunker, tackles, Captain Hubbard and "Tubby" Grew, guards, and Kernan, centre. Lee, quarterback, and for carriers Marion Cheek and Nat Howe, safe backs, and Jack Hammond, fullback.

The varsity frontier was broken by frequent substitutions during the scrimmage. Gordon went in for Crosby and Combs for Hall at end. Theopold subbed for Dunker at tackle, and Daniell and Bradford took a crack at the guard berth.

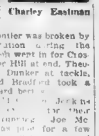
In the backfield [illegible] Jenkins and Pfaffman [illegible] their share of "mud running." Joe McGlone went in at [illegible] for a few plays, but was quickly replaced through fear of injury.

Play throughout was indecisive. A few forward passes were tried, but did not meet with [illegible].

Defensively the varsity played good football under the weather conditions. Play after play of the scrubs was thrown back for a loss or stopped without gain. The scrub backfield was weak against the varsity line.

Offensively, the varsity was bad. The line failed to open up holes, interference was a [illegible] and the backs failed to get started.

Charley Eastman



Eugene Daniell

Punting was poor. Hammond got the kicks off quickly enough to render blocking impossible; but his kicks lacked altitude or distance.

If conditions continue as they were during the first of the week, Crimson superiority in the kicking department will be on the decline, unless Hammond shows decided improvement in two days' practice.

Kicking is expected to be a formidable factor Saturday. If Dartmouth can offset Hammond, Pfaffman and McGlone with equally good kickers, the powerful Green machine has a greater chance to win.

Healy May Not Play

Williamstown, Oct. 23.—Acting Capt. Healy, Williams, who has served as leader since Capt. Robinson was operated upon two weeks ago, may not be able to play against Columbia because of an injury suffered in the Norwich game last week.

Three Harvard Stars Who Will Jolt Dartmouth Line

INTEREST IS BIG IN WRESTLING CONTEST

Not for many moons has there been so much interest in a wrestling match as in the contest tonight at the Grand Opera House. Stanley [illegible] Stasiak, Polish [illegible] and Tommy Drask, Boston [illegible] are [illegible] to [illegible] the mat.

Tommy Drask

In the mat, Drask polished off many of the best bone-crushers in the mat game. He hopes to turn back Stasiak, who has class to compete with the world's greatest men.

Drask should give the Pole plenty of action, says Champion Lewis. The champion should know as Tommy gave him a stiff tussle last season.

Stasiak is wild to think that Lewis should start to take sides here in the East. Stasiak's ambition is to meet the champion.

Besides this contest which is slated best two falls out of a possible three, with American Association rules to govern, there will be two other bouts.

Ed "Buck" Stone, the million dollar kid wrestler from the West, will clash with Lawson Pinkham of Attleboro.

In the curtain-raiser Frank Lurich the Lithuanian heavyweight, will meet a new comer in Jack Albright.

Jack Conway says after sizing up the card for the evening's entertainment at the Opera House, I'd pick Stasiak, Stone and Albright.

Jack is quite strong on the wrestlers.

McTIGUE AND TUNNEY POST BOUT FORFEITS

New York, Oct 23.—Mike McTigue and Gene Tunney posted weight and appearance forfeits for their 10-round match at Madison Square Garden, December 10, for the world's light heavyweight title.

Under the agreement, both are to make the class limit, 175 pounds, at 3 p. m., the day of the bout.

Story of How Ward Hit Shevlin With 'Sneak' Blow

Here's a detailed description by Jack Conway of the first round of the recent Shevlin-Ward bout which has started a controversy over the so-called "sneak" punch.

ROUND ONE

At the bell Shevlin walked from his corner, his left arm by his side, his right hand extended for a handshake. Ward bolted from his corner, both arms by his side. As he approached Shevlin he lifted his right hand as if to shake with the New England champion. As Shevlin prepared to shake Ward's right hand, the Elizabeth, N. J., welterweight drew his left up quickly and scored with a terrific left hook to the jaw. Shevlin was off his guard, his muscles relaxed. The suddenness and power of the blow sent Shevlin back against the ropes. He was "out" on his feet.

Eddie felt into a clinch and clung on for dear life. Ward rained blows upon his opponent, but could not score with a knockout partly on account of his over-eagerness and also as a result of Shevlin's holding and defensive tactics. Toward the latter part of the round Shevlin's head began to clear somewhat and he forced Ward against the ropes under a furious, desperate attack. Shevlin roughed his opponent up a great deal, but was not cautioned by the referee.

ALL-BULLDOG SHOW HELD ON SATURDAY

A white French bulldog is among the entries for the all-bulldog show that will be staged Saturday at Horticultural Hall under the joint direction of the French Bulldog and the English Bulldog Clubs of New England. This rare specimen is Peter Dupont from Lewiston, Me.

A total of 150 entries has been received for the French class and 32 English bulldogs will be benched.

Eight French bulldogs from New York will compete against Massachusetts dogs for a bronze trophy and a purse of $200.

MALDEN AND NEWTON IN SCHOOL CLASSIC

By FRED C. LANE

"I don't want anybody to think for a moment, and especially my boys, that our game with Newton High on Saturday is to be an easy affair. Both my baseball and football teams, regardless of how good or prominent their standing might have been, seemed to be jinxed when lining up against the Orange and Black colors.

Jack McDonald

"The past year we have whipped them in swimming and baseball and hope that the jinx that has followed in the wake of Malden High athletic teams has been broken. As a matter of fact and to better explain my view of Saturday's game, you might say that it will be the toughest encounter that Malden has played this season, which goes for a lot."

Such was the comment of Coach Jack McDonald of Malden High on the Malden-Newton game to be played on Saturday at Malden.

Maldon has made a gallant fight to win the New England champion[illegible]. They have scored victories [illegible] opponents to date, [illegible] been tied on [illegible] occasions they [illegible] unscathed.

Newton has in former years won over Malden's football team when their eleven looked far inferior. The Malden players well remember the downing and stubborn fight put up by Brookline which was considered an easy victim by the Malden athletes.

COACH McDONALD GIVES PLAYERS HARD DRILL.

Coach McDonald has the squad working on the muddy field today getting the lads accustomed to a [illegible] and heavy going. The first [illegible] and teams were sent up against [illegible] which scrimmages lasted for two hours.

Malden on paper is a better club that will win with a fair break in luck. All the players are in fine fettle and await by the whistle of the referee to continue their campaigns for the New England title.

Coach "Allie" Dickinson has not the strength this season that has been characteristic of former Newton teams. His line is strong and fast, even considered the equal of Malden.

The backfield without Clement Epley and O'Donnell lacks the class that would be so evident were they available to play. Both these stars will be back in action for the November 10 game, so it was reported today.

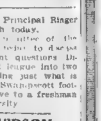
Tickets for this game are going fast. A sell-out by Saturday is anticipated by school officials. Malden is football mad. Judging by the crowds that have turned out for every home game, not a seat will be had when game time approaches.

GLOUCESTER HIGH FORFEITS TO LYNN.

Gloucester High forfeited its game to Lynn English, which was to have been played Saturday. A letter of explanation was expected at the Lynn School from Principal Ringer of Gloucester High today.

The question of the future of the North Shore meet seems to depend two very important questions being the baseball league into two sections and deciding just what is to be done on the Swampscott football question relative to a freshman playing on the varsity.

CLAUDE DAVIDSON JOINS BRINE STAFF



Claude Davidson

Claude Davidson [illegible] Brown and major league ball player, coach of the Harvard freshman baseball team, and president of the Boston Twilight League, has become associated with the James W. Brine Company in the C. B. Davidson sporting goods business and will enter his new duties on Monday, October 29.

Davidson has developed a wide acquaintance throughout the sporting world on account of his achievement of organizing and conducting the affairs of the Twilight League and should be well fitted for his new undertaking.

He will be at liberty at all times to give advice and offer suggestions to organizations, managers, players and umpires regarding any phase of the game.

BALTIMORE OBTAINS SYRACUSE PITCHER

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 23.—Manager Jack Dunn of the Baltimore International League club, announces that he has obtained Pitcher Clifford Jackson from the Syracuse club by the waiver route.

Syracuse asked waivers on the big right hander 10 days ago and Dunn was the only club president to claim him. Jackson formerly starred for the University of Illinois.

SATURDAY'S CROWD WILL BREAK ALL STADIUM RECORDS

DARTMOUTH SQUAD IS ON WAY

By NICK FLATLEY

The football chasers from Dartmouth arrived in Boston today and thereby stirred up a little more interest in a game that is wrecking all October records for enthusiasm, and all that sort of thing.

The stalwarts of Hanover, as they are still known around the campus by loyal descendants of John Harvard, many a long moon, but the boys from the South seem to think this is their year.

So [illegible] nine college game along with the athletes, and the alumni are gathering from the four corners of earth, though not even Doc Cook has ventured to disturb one of cold corpses yet.

Heinie Dunker

The wail de[illegible] for tickets [illegible] it has become chronic now at all large sporting events is making itself heard in any body who has a friend, who knows a friend who has been, but that little trouble has become part of the program.

Harvard's big Stadium will be jammed, with the largest throng that ever packed into it, the seating capacity is greater than ever before, but even if both Yale and Dartmouth would agree, everybody who would like to spend the afternoon watching the Green and the Crimson scrap.

The e isn't the betting there used to be on these college affairs, but the professional players have made Harvard a slight favorite, although on the season's performances, it would look like an absolutely even bet.

Harvard is Harvard, with a professional air of mystery always hanging over the football machine.

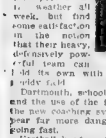
Jesse Hawley's athletes were to rest tonight, and have a secret session at the Stadium tomorrow, after which the [illegible] hands were to do their final practicing. The Cambridge coaches have been terribly peeved at the weather all week, but find some satisfaction in the notion that their heavy, defensively powerful team can hold its own with anybody on a wide field.

Dartmouth, schooled to deception and the use of the forward pass by the new coaching system, would appear far more dangerous with the going fast.

Football headquarters at both institutions have sent forth warnings that this game is nothing more than an early season contest. There's not supposed to be any objective, or real incentive for victory, but not even the individuals who send out the stuff believe a bit of it.

Every Dartmouth man in the universe would be cheering for a week if a Big Green happened to win [illegible] every Harvard representative would be worshipped. Stories of how the so-called big games, later on, will not pack in any more rivalry, or real hard playing than this joust a couple of days hence.

There may be more diversity of play, more concerted team work and strategy later on, but [illegible] Harvard-Dartmouth game even in Mid Summer would be always a splendid example of the desperate fighting spirit which [illegible] needs youth will attempt to have what it calls its fun.



Earl Evans

Football fans who cannot make the Stadium will be able to find plenty of fun for themselves at Braves Field where Boston College tackles Marquette. The Westerners, from all we can gather, have a very good football team. They haven't been kicked in a couple of years, and that means something, let the opponents be of any old class.

The team defeated Detroit last season, and no bunch of weaklings could do that. In fact it was too tough a stunt for E. C. Cavanaugh has a much better team this season but by the same token, Marquette has its identical 1922 lineup, so the clash should provide much excitement.

The Westerners are forward passers, as all Western teams are, and the aerial game always furnishes more thrills than the conservative brand of football our teams are accustomed to play in their early games.

And anyhow, it's worth any price

CHUCK CALDER INELIGIBLE FOR DARTMOUTH

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 25.—Close upon the heels of the weather jinx that has prevented the Dartmouth varsity football team from going through its regular daily drill comes the announcement that Chuck Calder, star punter and one of the two most relied upon for future victories of the season, is ineligible and cannot play either Saturday or the rest of the year

Chuck Calder

Back in 1920, Calder got into a game for just a few minutes and so he started with the class of 1923, he has played three years of college football. The laws of the Cleveland boy is undoubtedly the hardest how that has come to Coach Hawley so far.

The condition of most of the team has been almost perfect up to date and Hawley had every reason to expect that before two more games went by his one best punting boy would be over the leg injury and ready for work

But the fates have decreed otherwise and the task remains to develop another booter.

Practice was held in the gym following an intensive limbering up.

When the downpour let up, Hawley brought his charges on to the field again, and put them through a long scrimmage session. Reggie Kelley and Loomis, left half backs on the first and second teams booted to each other for fifteen minutes, with the line running down each time.

Neither of these boys have the distance to their kicks that Calder had, but with a little more intensive drill and with the knowledge that one of them will have to bear the brunt of this department, ought to bring some improvement.

Hawley starts away from here this morning with three teams, comprising practically the same men that made the jaunt to Vermont. As for line-up no one can say. The line will probably remain intact, Bjorkman and Hazenbuhler at end, Oberlander and Hatch at tackles, Deal and Aschenbach at guard, and Ellis center. For the backfield, either Kelley or Loomis is likely to have first choice, although Haws is pretty sure of his regular berth at the other half, and Leavitt will play at fullback.

To stimulate the student body to support the team to the limit at the Harvard game, a rally was held in the gym tonight where 1,500 men gathered to hear the words of Coach Hawley, Dean Laycock and others.

From the present indications at least that number of undergraduates to say nothing of the townspeople and faculty will be at the station Friday noon to take the Boston bound train.

An extra sale of tickets was held this afternoon, but before half an hour was up, all the tickets were gone, and 200 anxious students departed from the gym without tabs.

AMATEUR RING MEN BATTLE AT ELKS

A capacity crowd should attend the Boston Lodge of Elks' amateur boxing tournament at No. 10 Somerset street, tonight. There should be plenty of action as the boys who are entered in the 112, 118, 126, 147 pounds and the heavyweight classes always furnish plenty of thrills.

This is the second tourna[illegible] ment the Elks are staging this season. The first card was an excellent one. The fans witnessed many bouts. Some of the best boys in the amateur ranks are entered for this tournament. Every amateur show the lodge staged attracted a capacity attendance so there is no reason why there shouldn't be another banner crowd Thursday.

Scouts who desire to send in their entry blanks should do so at once with George Dennis, No. 10 bomer set street.

BOWDOIN GETS READY FOR BATES CONTEST

Brunswick, Me., Oct. 25.—The Bowdoin football squad is hard at work for the game with Bates on Saturday, the second game in the Maine State series for the championship.

Coach Bates possesses a strong team this year, and is putting the emphasis on the overhead attack. Coach Bowdoin, the game looks fair to be one of the hardest fights of the season.

The prospect for Bowdoin is not so bright as it might be, since several stars were disabled in the game with Colby last saturday.

of admission to watch Chuck Darling, the B. C. captain, punt a football. Nobody ever could point one farther or more accurately than the blond Eagle flash.

Both teams have powerful lines and powerful backfields. Harvard has a relatively poor offensive, but powerful defence. Dartmouth, on the other hand, has developed a sensational offence but lacks a strong defence.

INJURIES WEAKEN BOSTON COLLEGE ELEVEN

Coach Frank Murray and his squad of thirty Marquette "Hilltoppers" will arrive in Boston late tonight for Saturday's interesting battle with Boston College.

The Eagle has still a great deal to do before it is in fit condition to face the Badger staters. The rain of the past two days has handicapped Coach Cavanaugh from successfully trying out the plays which Marquette coaches have not had yet an opportunity to witness

The greatest handican of the Eagle, however, is the havoc played by injuries with both the back field and the line. Willie McManus lost as a guard, "Cav" finds it necessary to look for a capable successor.

Either Bill Doyle, who has been displaced at centre by Larkin, or Jack Donahue, who may return to his original berth at guard, will be chosen to pair off with Bearer

If Donahue is sent in at guard [illegible] Dunn will hold down the empty [illegible] tackle's position, and add his pound[illegible] age to the line. This would bring the average of the forwards to well over 190 pound[illegible]

The backfield is still uncertain. The loss of "Plaster" Ward has been a great that it is almost impossible to find a fitting substitute Ward is in a hospital as a result of an injured leg, and will probably be lost to the Eagle until the Holy Cross game

Yale is short of toe specialists and probably will depend upon Stevens to start Saturday's game and Neidhamer relieve him.

With today only left for scrimmage possible before the Brown match Saturday Jones plans a long and strenuous session of actual football

TELLS REASONS FOR FAITH IN CARRIERS

By FRANK H. McLOON, Financial Editor

The writer is in receipt of a communication from President Daniel W. Hand of the Baltimore & Ohio, which hails from President Coolidge's home town, having been born in North Hartland, Vt.

This communication sets forth some personal views and opinions of the head of the company of the second artery in which the writer has a part of the present investment fabric.

Whatever may be the best solution of the railroad problem for the country as a whole, or in groups, or in any particular section, it is certain that the railroads are fixed by Interstate Commerce Commission for reasonable purposes. Two corollaries follow. One, that if the roads as a whole, or in groups, are permitted to earn and actually earn a rate of return of 5½ per cent on the entire value of the properties as now fixed by the commission, that same amount of money should be equal to about 10 per cent of 61 per cent, of the value of the properties, or the amount of the bonded indebtedness.

"It would seem, therefore," says Mr. Hand, "that under the terms of the Transportation Act, railroad bonds considered as a class of investments ought to be among the safest and the best and it was expressly the intention of Congress to make them so because it was well understood that unless the railroads had to pay for the money which they used for new facilities, it would in turn have to be met in rates which would be unreasonable or refused to pay for transportation ...

The Head of the Complaint Department Is Deaf—

A Good Thing for Her, a Good Thing for the Firm, a Lesson for Tens of Thousands of Employes Who Hope to Become Owners Some Day

Every great business has its "Complaint Department."

Some individual, carefully chosen, listens to all dissatisfied customers.

Sometimes a man, sometimes a woman, listens to the complaints—as "head of the complaint department."

Some complainers have reason on their side and can be satisfied. Others are unreasonable, but in the interest of the business they must be pacified and sent away contented.

There are all kinds of complaint clerks.

We shall tell you today about one, because her case is a lesson for every human being working for a living.

Miss Benevolence—that is not her real name—is head of the complaint department in one of the biggest institutions in the United States.

She stands or sits all day at her window, "listening" to complaints.

Old men arrive, red in the face, furious, sputtering. They think they really ought to call the police, but they are going "to see about it" first.

The madder they are, the redder in the face, the more unreasonable and threatening, the more benevolently this complaint clerk smiles.

She smiles, smiles, smiles, talks in the gentlest possible voice, and occasionally looks at little written memoranda that are handed to her by an assistant behind her.

Young ladies and gentlemen, you will be interested to hear that this complaint clerk is almost stone deaf. Her hearing is so poor that she gets only a few words here and there. The girl standing behind her hears everything, and calls her attention with a written memorandum to anything especially important.

"What," you will say, "appoint a deaf person to hear complaints!" In that appointment was shown the wisdom of a big merchant, as you shall see.

Not hearing all the abusive talk, the bitterness or the unreasonable arguments, this complaint clerk SMILES ALWAYS.

The infuriated customer starts out in a rage, ends in a peaceful mood, talks more gently, goes away contented.

What can he do against that smile, that sympathetic, interested smile of Miss Benevolence, who has heard scarcely a word, but has a gentle spirit within her?

Observe, young men and women, the value of a smile.

Here it overcomes deafness, here it even makes of deafness an advantage.

The smile is not disturbed by the bitter words. The placidity of the face is not ruffled by unreasonable claims or demands. And always the voice is gentle, reassuring and POLITE.

In Miss Benevolence, her smile, her wonderful success as a complaint clerk, there is a lesson for young men and women whose success depends on their ability to deal successfully with other human beings.

We cannot all be deaf and smiling. Many lines of business would make that utterly impossible.

But the worker whose success depends on ability to deal with the public can at least imagine that he is deaf when the customer is irritated or unreasonable. "Answer not a fool according to his folly," says the wise man.

"I shall not answer an angry customer according to his anger," says the Wise Clerk, determined to get on in life.

Miss Benevolence, of whom we have told you, lives happily, her pulse is normal, because she does not hear the things that might disturb her.

YOU can live happily and advance rapidly if you refuse to be DISTURBED by the criticism, the unreasonable demands, the disagreeable exactions of customers.

It is not what is said to us that affects us, it is what we say to OURSELVES.

Answer a fool according to his folly, and you have wasted your time on a fight and weakened your chances.

But answer a fool according to your own wisdom, bearing in mind that the customer is YOUR problem, looking at the customer's face as you would look at the lock on a safe, determined to find the combination that will open the customer's pocketbook for his benefit and your employer's—do that, and you will soon find yourself getting ahead in the world.

Try to be as patient with a customer as you are with a jigsaw puzzle picture—you don't get mad at THAT.

Be as patient and persevering with the customer, young man, as you are with the balls on the pool table, or with the carburetor of your motorcycle, or with the necktie that you are tying so carefully, or with your little mustache that you are training just so—and you will know success and be a free man.

That wonderfully successful complaint clerk does just one thing that is important. She smiles, and the madder the complainer is the more beautifully she smiles.

YOU CAN DO THAT.

Do it for a few weeks, months—studying yourself, controlling yourself, saying to yourself, "I will find the combination to every human being that comes before me"—then watch yourself go ahead in business.

Harvard and the Klan

So Harvard is getting excited over the Ku Klux Klan. It is too bad. If our colleges cannot keep calm over a stupendous bluff like the Ku Klux Klan, what can we expect of the rest of the world?

Again we say that the Ku Klux Klan lives on hysteria, notoriety and fear. Why keep on feeding it? The non-political element of our Catholic society is treating this organization as it deserves to be treated—with silent contempt. Agitation concerning it, publicity about it only keeps it going and keeps such grafters as may be in it well provided with provender.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON SEEING MORE THAN HALF THE MOON

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"HOW and why," I am asked, "is it that no inhabitant of the earth ever did or could see more than half the moon during any part of the twenty-four hours?"

I might ask, in return, how anybody could expect to see more than half of the moon at one time? It is true that if you hold a marble say a foot from your eyes you can see a little more than one-half of it, provided that you keep both eyes open. But, if you look with only one eye you can see only half the marble, in fact not quite half.

The advantage of having both eyes open is that the distance between the eyes being greater than the diameter of the marble, the line of sight from each eye extends beyond the ends of the diameter of the marble. This is well known to be the cause of the perspective effect by which we are able to perceive the rotundity of objects and the difference of their distances.

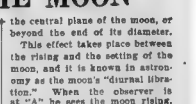
But in looking at the moon, which is more than 2,000 miles in diameter, and nearly 240,000 miles away, this prospective power of our double vision does not come into play. Nevertheless, owing to both the greater size of the earth as compared with the moon, and the earth's daily rotation on its axis, we can see more than half of the moon any day or night, if we watch it for several hours. A diagram makes this evident at a glance, and reveals one of the interesting minor facts of astronomy not often thought of.

In the drawing the distance between the moon and the earth is, for convenience, represented very much too small, but this does not at all affect the principle illustrated, while it renders its operation more evident. The earth is supposed to be rotating in the direction indicated by the arrows. The relatively small angular movement of the moon around the earth in the same time may be neglected.

The observer at "A" on the earth sees past the central plane of the moon as far as the point "a" on the moon. But in a few hours the rotation of the earth carries the observer from "A" to "B," and now his line of sight extends to the point "b" on the moon, which like "a" is beyond the central plane of the moon, or beyond the end of its diameter.

This effect takes place between the rising and the setting of the moon, and it is known in astronomy as the moon's "diurnal libration." When the observer is at "A" he sees the moon rising, and his line of sight extends a little around the moon's western edge. When he arrives at "B" the moon is setting, and the sight-line extends around the moon's eastern edge. The distance to which the line extends, first around the western edge and then around the eastern, is about one degree. A degree on the moon corresponds to a linear distance of nearly 19 miles.

It is plain that the cause of this phenomenon is identical in principle with that of ordinary perspective vision; it depends upon the fact that the earth's diameter greatly exceeds the moon's. Examination of the diagram will show that an observer on the moon could never see a full half of the earth, because the earth being larger than the moon, the line of sight for the lunarian never extends as far as the ends of the diameter drawn through its central plane at right angles to the direction of the moon



"Because the Earth is big we can look a little around the edges of the Moon. It's a 'diurnal libration.'"

Evidently a stereoscopic picture of the moon can be made by combining a photo of it taken at, or near, moonrise with one taken at, or near, moonset.

There are two other so-called librations of the moon which enable us to see more than one-half of its surface, though not at a fixed moment of time. One of these is the "libration in longitude," which produces an effect similar to that of the "diurnal libration," but several times greater, and the other is the "libration in latitude," which enables us to see alternately several degrees beyond the lunar poles. These librations produce far greater stereoscopic effects than the diurnal one, but they both require a month instead of half a day to complete a full swing.

TRAINING IN ART FOR FARMERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Art training for the farmer, fruit grower and ranchman would do much to "keep the boys down on the farm," according to an article by George C. Nimmons, published by the Department of the Interior.

There is scarcely a ranch or farm, according to Mr. Nimmons, that "could not originally have been made into an attractive or beautiful place without an additional expense had the owner possessed knowledge of architecture and landscape gardening sufficient to enable him to take advantage of his natural surroundings and its possibilities.

Tipping

Editor Boston American:

I cannot let that letter of Oct. 19 in regards to tipping go by with out comment in behalf of the thousand of taxi drivers, porters, waitresses, etc., who give their best and faithful service for little or no salary, relying on the generous (?) public for their daily bread.

Few if any of the great traveling public know that the porter in the large terminals receive no compensation whatsoever outside of the tips they make yet, I suppose, this same man who writes saying that tips should only be given when a faithful, conscientious service has been rendered, is only one of the many who daily engage a porter or taxi driver to wait on him hand and foot and then walk off without even saying thank you.

The Modern Girl

Editor Boston American:

The well-known modern girl has started something again. She has provided a new field of labor for future professors and psychologists. Consider the time and labor spent in gathering statistics on just how smoking harms, stunts the growth and interferes with the bodily functions of bad little boys. Now, they will have to start all over again and find out exactly how it hurts bad little girls.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

THE MOTHER OF CONSTANTINE

IT is not known where or when Helena—Flavia Julia Helena—was born. Some authorities say she was the daughter of an innkeeper in Bithynia, one of the ancient divisions of Asia Minor. Other historians record that she was either a British or a Celtic princess, and bore him a son who was destined not only to be one of the great rulers of history, but to have vast influence in Christianizing the world.

The love which existed between this mother and son must have been very beautiful, from several incidents in their lives which have come down through the centuries.

When Constantius Chlorus—the father of Constantine and husband of Helena—was elevated to the purple and made one of the Cæsars, he was forced to repudiate and divorce Helena in order to marry Theodora, the daughter of Maximian, one of the senior Cæsars, for at this time there were five Cæsars who governed jointly the Roman empire.

This must have been a great sorrow to her son Constantine. Because his first act upon becoming Cæsar was to confer the title of "Augustus" on his mother and to cause her to be treated with the greatest respect and honor.

It was this son who before battle, according to tradition, saw the sign of the cross in the heavens and with it the inscription, "In hoc signo vinces." From that time these words were emblazoned on Constantine's banners.

Constantine afterward caused Christianity to be adopted by the State. He also inaugurated Constantinople as the capital of the Roman empire. His mother was constantly with him, but it was not until her later years that he converted her to Christianity.

From that time, therefore, became an earnest Christian. She did all in her power to further this young religion. So fervent was this good woman's wish to proclaim her new faith that she made a pilgrimage to Jerusalem. There she built the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and the Church of the Nativity.

On this memorable visit to the Holy Land, it is believed by many, that Helena found the cross on which our Lord was crucified.

However, it was not because for this, but through such a spirit of piety and munificence that this noble woman, who had been born a pagan, obtained such a venerable position in the church that at her death she was made a saint.

St. Helena is remembered in history not only as the mother of the all-powerful Constantine, but as a woman of kindly thoughts and kindly deeds.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

WHERE STRANGERS ARE WELCOME

By TEMPLE MANNING

WHILE visiting some foreign countries, the traveler occasionally feels the piercing glances of the natives and realizes that he is considered an intruder, an unwelcome guest.

But the tourist who passes through the plains of Mongolia is always certain of a welcome—a royal welcome, in fact. With what relief does he view tent, or yurt, as it is called, after an exhausting journey over the Gobi Desert!

The housewife greets him smilingly at the door. She does not know him, of course, but for that very reason, custom makes her particularly cordial in her greeting and her invitation that he enter her humble home.

Every member of the household exerts himself or herself to make the visitor comfortable. The daughters hurry to prepare tea. For tea must be served every stranger—expulsion from the pale is the penalty for Mongols who fail to conform with this long-established custom.

It is said that this custom can be traced to the fact that there are few inns in Mongolia and tourists are dependent upon private families for their shelter and food. Besides, the appearance of a stranger is always a memorable occasion in a Mongolian home. The natives in the plains depend almost entirely upon travelers for their news of the outside world as well as their news of one another.

In addition to being served tea gratis the stranger is usually invited to participate in any festivity that the family, whose guest he is, may then be planning. Indeed, he is entertained as even a statesman or any other famous personage might be. In Mongolia the people are truly hospitable!

Bassinet and Mattress

Editor Helping Hand:

If you have the address of anyone in need of a bassinet and mattress, please send it to me, and I will gladly send them mine. It is not new, but clean. I received a large crib through the Helping Hand and hope this will help someone as the crib helped me. I wrote a week ago asking for dresses for the children, but since then have had the good fortune of having some new dresses sent the children by an obliging relative. As I read the paper each night I can see where so many families need clothes more than we do at present that I would not think of taking them from someone else. MRS. E. S.

Thank you. I know the crib will help someone a lot, but it happens to have no requests on file just now, so your offer will be held for replies.

Thanks Mrs. E. S.

Editor Helping Hand:

May I through your column send my thanks to Mrs. E. S. of Saugus, Mass. I received today a beautiful box of clothing and it meant so much to me to the present time. It has made me very happy. Will you also remember me with something for my two boys five and five and a half girl three. Mrs. E. S didn't have anything in this line.

MRS. A. M. C.

Coat and Tam

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a nice warm coat for Dora K. and a tam. If she has been supplied, I will gladly send it to anyone you suggest. Also a warm coat for a girl eight. Mrs. J. A. M. has one 7½ and think it might fit her, and a warm mackinaw for a boy eleven or twelve. Kindly suggest someone for these, as I don't believe in feeding the moths. MRS. D. O'G.

Thank you. Dora K. has been pretty well supplied, so we are sending you Dorothy K.'s address instead. Also the address of Mrs. J. A. M. and that of a needy mother with big doctor's bills to pay who will appreciate the mackinaw for her son.

Coat for Dora

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you kindly send me the address of Dora K. I have a coat her size and will be glad to give it to her. I also have five pairs of one-strap pumps, all in good condition, size 6D. I have other things for a girl sixteen. MRS S. H. A.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Dora K. and the addresses of Mrs. G. V. B. and Mrs. R. E. for the other things.

Needs Winter Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

Can you help me get a Winter coat for a girl eight years old and an overcoat for a boy fourteen. I also need shoes for them, girl size eleven and boy, size four. I have three worsted jumper dresses that would fit a little girl six years old that I will gladly give to some needy one. I am very willing to take anything I can make over for I am very much in need. I am a widow with two children. I have had to support my two children, pay rent, and buy food and wood for seven and a half years and got on well until this Summer and Fall when our mill has not run steadily and my being out of work so much has made it very hard for us. I will be so thankful for any help at all. D. P.

You will be sent the address of a needy mother who will be grateful for the jumper dresses. Thank you for offering them.

Baby Clothes for Mrs. R. C.

Editor Helping Hand:

I want to thank you for what you have done for me. I have just returned from spending two months with C. R. H. of New Hampshire on his farm, which was the first outing I have had in over nine years. Will you please send me Mrs R. C's address? I will send her some baby clothes for the new comer. If I am not asking too much will you see if you can get me some dresses for my four-year-old girl and myself, size 40 48.

M. R. H.

You have been sent Mrs. R. C.'s address for the baby clothes, and we thank you.

Two Girls and a Boy

Editor Helping Hand:

Does the Helping Hand give to those little girls "far away as Winchendon?" If so could they please send anything in the line of clothing ready to wear or that could be made over for three grandchildren whose mother passed away last November. They are two girls, eight and six, and a boy of four. L. M. N.

We have one correspondent in South Danvis, although we speak also in New England.

Crippled Boy Wants Toys

Editor Helping Hand:

I am eight years old and do not go to school yet, as five years ago I had the flu when the epidemic was around and it left me with t. b. in the bones and I am a cripple and have only been able to walk around six months ago. Have you any toys I could play with, as I am alone with my brother, three years old, and we have no toys, as my father was drowned and I would like a few playthings to play with, and has anyone any warm clothes as I have to play out doors, or things for my little brother and my older brother, who is thirteen. One of the neighbors looks after me while mother works, but we don't have much money. My mother wears a 4½ shoe and a 44 dress.

ANTHONY.

Taming Europe's Royal Cut-Ups with a 4-Cornered Match

Kings and Queens Have as Many Woes with Their Kids as Do Plain Folks, So the Monarchs Hope Marriage Will Make Their Youngsters Behave

"Poppy" Princess Marie-Jose, Whose Parents, the King and Queen of the Belgians, Hope She Will "Calm Down" When Wedded to Prince Umberto, of Italy.

At Left: Umberto as a Sub-Lieutenant of the Italian Army.

At Right: Crown Prince Leopold, of Belgium, Betrothed to Princess Mafalda, of Italy.

Umberto Proudly Displaying His First Mustache.

POOR, distracted old Europe's most vexing problem, which isn't one of boundary lines, or possible prohibition, or even the latest gaup in Paris gowns, finally has been solved. Or, at least, four personages (who ought to know) think so.

They are King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, of Belgium, and King Victor Emanuel and Queen Helena, of Italy. Their dilemma—to tame two troublesome, though charming, children, the "cut-ups of the Continent"—has been untangled at last. How? Why, with a four-cornered match in which the pair of madcaps figure!

One of the latter is the twenty-year-old Umberto Nicholas Thomas Jean Marie, officially known as the Prince of Piedmont and the Chevalier of the Order of the Annunciation. The other is seventeen-year-old Marie-Jose. He, however, is unofficially known as the "Daredevil of Rome," while his bride-to-be has a string of roguish nicknames which include "Colonel Princess," the "Belgian Firefly," and the "Fair Matador."

You may judge from this that both the Prince and the Princess are veritable temperamental cannon-crackers. Their married life, whatever else it may be, isn't likely to prove spiceless. After they wed, just WHAT will happen? This is the question which the gossips from Rome to Brussels are asking one another, with shrugs, winks and chuckles.

For the little tomboy and the "royal Boy Scout," as her fiance, is affectionately termed, have in common peppery tempers, unlimited love of adventure, and the dash and bravado that go with romantic natures.

But, fascinating as they are, Umberto and Marie-Jose, after all, form only two sides of the latest matrimonial rectangle. The other couple are Crown Prince Leopold, Duke of Brabant, and the Princess Mafalda, of Italy.

Oddly enough, Leopold is the brother of Marie-Jose, and Mafalda is Umberto's sister. More oddly still, while Marie-Jose and Umberto, betrothed to one another, are as like in disposition as the proverbial peas, Mafalda and Leopold, also engaged, share striking similarities of personality.

They are gentle, tractable, mild—even, on occasion, meek, it's said. They are studious, retiring, simple in their tastes, and much given to meditation. In short, they are as much unlike the "Fair Matador" and the "Daredevil of Rome" as they could be.

Naturally, the four-cornered match does not lack political significance. It is to unite, perhaps for all time, the two great houses of Savoy and Saxe-Coburg-and-Gotha. But, the diplomatic wiseacres declare, the parents of the engaged quartette had more in mind when they planned the alliances than just international harmony. They were thinking how jolly it would be if the two "live wires" should fall in love, and stop throwing off so many sparks.

Let's suppose—and it's not impossible—that Umberto and Marie-Jose are devoted to each other, and pass on to a character sketch of the former. From babyhood, he has had his own way—with a vengeance. It is recorded that at six he tyrannized over his household with the vigor of a pugilist and the "airs" of a major domo. There are many confirming incidents.

There was the episode of the picnic, when he leaped toward a futting rock; fell, and hurt his knee. Scolded by his mother, he snatched an orange from a servant and hurled it into the sea. "You must beg the man's pardon," declared Queen Helena, "or go without candy for a week!" For seven days Umberto never touched a sweetmeat.

There was, too, the time when Umberto was made head of the Young Explorers of Italy, equivalent to our Boy Scouts. Clad in very "dressy" white starched things, he rebelled; created panic in the royal household and finally ended the rumpus by donning a "regular" uniform, to the horror of his dressers.

And there was a day when, seeing marching soldiers in the lower Isonzo Hills, Umberto, mad about military matters, threw himself amongst them; shouted "I'll go wherever you're going!" and even emulated them to the shocking extent of taking off his stockings and plodding along barefoot beside them!

"Rather like his mother," laugh the Romans. They do not mean, however, that Queen Helena is boisterous, but simply that her dark, Montenegrin beauty is reflected in the glowing face of her son. Despite their resemblance, there are things which Umberto has done that his mother never could. He has soared aloft in airplanes—gone beneath the sea's surface in submarines—steered warships—sailed boats—shot wild boars and ridden wilder horses.

He served as an ordinary seaman in the Italian Navy. He cruised the Mediterranean in a man-of-war. He entered the army as a private in 1922, working his way up to a sub-lieutenancy. "SOME boy!" say American tourists in Rome, when told of his "goings-on."

Now Umberto's fiancee, Marie-Jose, hasn't had all these chances to test her mettle. But, for a girl, she has amply proved her high spirits and whatever is Belgian for pep. Educated at a broad-minded British school, the "Firefly" skimmed through the exhilarating air of democratic ideas with eager wings. Even when she studied, later, at the famous Santissima Annunziata Institute, in Florence, she never swanked or swaggered over her social standing. Living a Spartan life—plain food, early bedtime, rigorous exercise—she was boundlessly healthy, also popular. "A sore trial to her teachers, but a rapturous joy to the other children"; thus was she summed up.

"Colonel Princess," aflame with gayety, her bushy blonde hair catching the light like a fluffy halo, indulged in many pranks. At the age of six, after "trying on" her mother's diamond tiara, she flung it aside with contempt, exclaiming, "Take that thing away! It's not for a soldier like me!" And, enthralled with everything military, she went quite wild with delight when her father "presented" her with a regiment, the Garde Civique of Ostend.

How at various times she lectured learned physicians for "not curing Daddy soon enough"; turned somersaults before her mother's astounded guests in the palace; stuck out her tongue at a Brussels crowd and drew caricatures of fellow pupils—these and many more amusing tales are recounted of her.

Contrast this vivid little person with the sombre Mafalda. Only recently the report sped from Rome that so great was this delicate girl's devotion to her sister, Giovanna, that she could not bear to be separated from her, even by marriage. Then the serious illness of both princesses gave rise to the rumor of their attempted suicide. The world, horrified, could not help marveling at such a spirit of unity and self-sacrifice.

But Mafalda, so runs the gossip, is not less grave and subdued in nature than her intended, Prince Leopold. Though a thoroughly manly chap, he is introspective, writes dainty verse, and is, all in all, a masculine mirror of his betrothed.

"Why, each couple seems just made for one another!" That is the way Rome and Brussels have greeted the four-cornered wedding announcement. But the voices of the cynics will not be stilled. "Is THAT so?" they cry. "The two mild youngsters may hit it off perfectly. But Umberto and Marie-Jose? It will take more than a mere marriage to tame those charming cut-ups!"

Medbury Says

By John P. Medbury

THE average country dog doesn't realize how lucky he is until he comes to the city. He can romp all day on a farm, but it won't do him any good to dig for bones in the living room of a New York apartment.

IN the country he can hunt for squirrels in every tree, but he'll never find any rabbits under Turkish rugs.

THE city dog gets out once or twice a day and then he has to wear a muzzle. And no matter how well bred a dog is, he doesn't like to have his mouth in jail.

IT'S very discouraging to have his face locked up when the rest of him is free.

OF course every now and then his mistress will let his nose out on probation.

ONE man had his bull dog off the leash and he nearly killed a pomeranian. The dog had had a piece of ordinary cow steak for dinner and wanted something pedigreed for dessert.

IN the country, mongrels can and each other all day and nobody interferes.

BLUE ribbons mean nothing; the hungriest dog wins.

COUNTRY pups aren't restrained in any way. They're so tough that they use wire muzzles for a mouth wash.

CITY pets are too cooped up. A Brooklyn woman has a dog who's only been out one time in six months and the only way he got out then was by hanging to a burglar's leg.

IT'S better to be a country dog with the manes than a city canine with a pedigree.

SPENDING AS FAST AS YOU EARN IS DANGEROUS.

You may be working for a salary, but good as it is, it is not enough to permit you to mingle with a class of men, who, having made enough to carry them along through the remainder of their years, are now able to take life easy.

Somehow your association with them has resulted in your getting the spirit and the idea that you can do as they do.

At times you almost forget the difference in your circumstances and theirs.

You think they do not know how much you have to spend and that is some comfort to you, but a man who is on Easy Street does not have to be told to know just the financial condition of those he mingles with—he knows without being told—he has had relative expense figured every possible way long ago.

One evening recently, while planning to attend a moving picture show with my daughter, my husband requested me to purchase some cigarettes for him upon our return home. Imagine my embarrassment when, during a lull in the performance, my little girl remarked, loud enough to be heard by the audience: "Ma, don't forget your cigarettes."
